MONTREAL (CP) — Lucien Saulnier, chairman of Montreal's executive committee, announced Tuesday the city will continue its voluntary tax scheme despite a Quebec Court of Appeals decision that judged it illegal.

It was "most probable" that "we will instruct our legal department to seek a reversal of the decision from the Supreme Court of Canada," Saulnier said after learning of the appeals court decision earlier Tuesday.

Ministers Mum In Spy Case

OTTAWA (UPI) — The government adamantly refused Tuesday to disclose details of a spy case involving a former civil servant who reportedly tried to peddle military secrets but was let off "in the public interest."

Turner

The case, now "closed" according to Justice Minister John Turner, involved a handsome, well-educated but unknown civil servant who, informed government sources said, tried to sell information to an unnamed foreign power.

Prime Minister Trudeau was justice minister in the government of Lester Pearson when the case arose.

Informants in Ottawa confirmed a report in the Toronto Star that the civil servant was arrested in 1968 by Royal Canadian Mounted Police posing as agents of the foreign power. Turner, under heavy questioning in the House of Commons, said that a man suspected of spying was investigated by the RCMP but that no charges were laid against him.

"In the absence of charges being preferred it would not be proper nor would it be in the public interest to make the results of such investigations a matter of public record," Turner told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

Replying to questions by Stinfild and other Conservative MPs, Turner said the case was referred to law officers of the crown.

Belgrade Turning To West

BELGRADE (UPI) — Premier Mija Spiljak Tuesday indicated that Yugoslavia would turn more to the west as a result of Soviet military intervention in Czechoslovakia. But he said the country will remain "non-aligned."

Spiljak declared in a parliamentary speech that "in the present worsened international situation, Yugoslavia is ready . . . to improve co-operation with all countries, regardless whether they are socialist or otherwise."

The speech, which catalogued Yugoslav relations in Europe, included a renewed condemnation of the Soviet intervention. Spiljak said Moscow's action meant a "speeding up the armaments race and increasing tension and instability in international and international relations."

Military police fire at students in Mexico City

Snipers' Bullets Fly

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Student snipers battled police and army troops late Tuesday in Mexico City's worst fighting since the revolutionary days of the 1920s. A hospital official said at least 15 persons were killed in 24 hours of gun battles.

Diaz Ordaz

"It's still dangerous as hell out there," said an ambulance driver who delivered a wounded student to the hospital. Nearby armed students on the roof of the National Polytechnical Institute could be heard firing on police and soldiers.

But unless the fighting grows completely out of control, the Olympic Games will open on schedule Oct. 12, authorities said.

TOLL HIGHER

More than 400 assault cars ringed the Santo Tomas Vocational School, part of the larger institute campus that was occupied by the army after an all-night battle.

The hospital official said the figure of 15 known dead is less than the actual death toll because students were seen hauling away some bodies as troops advanced on the vocational school before dawn.

The same official said about 33 persons had been wounded, some of them seriously. They included bystanders and passengers on a bus gunned down by night riders early Tuesday. One man on the bus was shot in the back five times, he said.

STREETS LITTERED

It was the most serious crisis President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz has faced in his four years of office.

The sniping was so intense that troops occupying the vocational school pulled back to positions around the walls. Nearby streets were littered with the remains of burned out buses, trucks and cars.

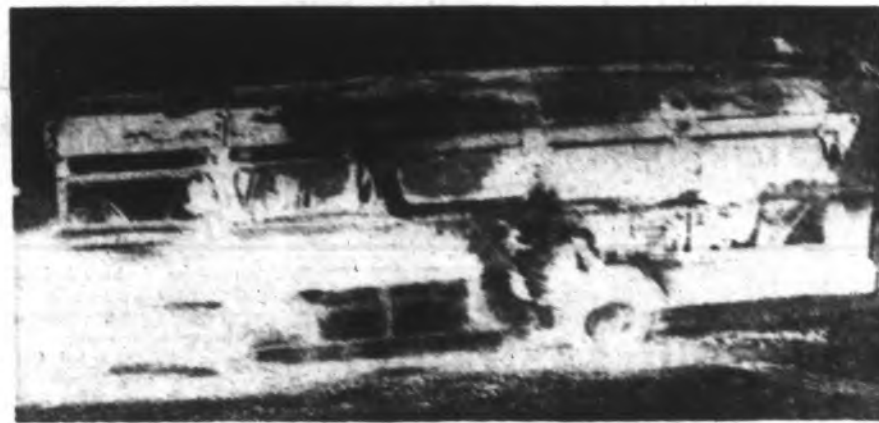

"You are here at your own risk," warned a policeman. "The area has not been secured."

FIRE AT POLICE

Police said carloads of students cruised the area in the early-morning hours pelted off policemen and hurling gasoline fire-bombs at buses commandeered by riot police. One policeman was seriously injured when a gasoline bomb exploded in his lap.

Besides demanding the dismissal of several Mexico City police officials, the students have made a host of other complaints. One of them is that the conservative Institutional Revolutionary Party has controlled Mexican political life too long. The party has won every presidential and gubernatorial election since its formation in 1928.

They are also demanding that the hated "grenaderos" — riot police — be disbanded, and that an anti-subversion clause be removed from the federal penal code.

De Gaulle's Red Carpet Awaits Daniel Johnson

From AP-Reuters

PARIS — Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec will be received in Paris next month with the honors usually reserved for a visiting head of government, a spokesman at Quebec House disclosed Tuesday.

From the time he arrives Oct. 11 to the hour of his departure Oct. 16, Johnson will be accorded red-carpet treatment.

It was expected the protocol arrangements would increase the strain on relations between Paris and Ottawa regarding French-speaking Canada, and especially Quebec. The Quebec House spokesman said Johnson probably will be met at the airport by de Gaulle's premier, Maurice Couve de Murville.

From there, Johnson will be conducted to the royal apartments of the French foreign ministry on the Quai d'Orsay, overlooking the Seine.

France's official guests at the Quai d'Orsay in the last 15 years have included the Queen and Prince Philip, former U.S. president Dwight Eisenhower, former Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and President Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

From the Quai d'Orsay, Johnson will move on to the Grand Trianon Palace at Versailles, where de Gaulle will be his host at a state dinner.

De Gaulle's only other guests at Trianon since it was restored to its former splendor have been the Queen, Prince Philip and Prime Minister Wilson of Britain. In return, Johnson will be

'Extras' Profits Soaring

PENTICTON (CP) — Two women charged with theft in the disappearance of nearly $500,000 from a Penticton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada were remanded to Oct. 1 on $10,000 bail Tuesday.

Prosecutor Brian Weddell said the amount missing was $482,000 when the women appeared before Magistrate Ross D. Oliver.

Ann, Kathleen Smith, 26, a five-year bank employee, was charged with falsifying bank records and with theft over $50. Fannie Shuben, 41, a bookkeeper with Oliver Industries Ltd., was charged with theft over $50.

The two women live together at a home in nearby Naramata.

RCMP said they believe the cash shortage occurred over a two-year period. It was discovered by a bank auditor.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senator Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.), Tuesday made public what he said was the biggest secret in American industry — the actual cost of building a U.S. car. He used his figures to call for a rollback on all car prices.

Nelson showed reporters what he said was Ford's unit cost analysis, done by a computer, on all its 1968 model cars and the company's list price recommendations.

The figures generally showed that the car maker didn't make an excess profit on what he charged the dealer for the basic car, but there was plenty of profit in what the dealer asked the customer and what the manufacturer charged the dealer for so-called extras.

UP TO 295 PER CENT

A four-door Galaxie 500, for example, cost the dealer 16.8 per cent more than it cost the builder to make. But optional equipment — usually amounting to a third of the selling price — was marked up between 57.8 per cent and 293 per cent over cost, Nelson's figures showed.

Nelson said the Ford documents were submitted to his Senate subcommittee on small business monopoly by safety critic Ralph Nader. After weeks of analysis by the subcommittee staff, Nelson said "There was no doubt about the authenticity of the documents. This is the real stuff."

REFUSED TO SAY

Despite requests by the justice department, federal safety officials, the United Auto Workers union and other organizations, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler have refused to disclose the cost of building a car. Nelson said GM and Chrysler probably followed similar patterns in construction costs and pricing.

Nelson said that the data showed that the Big Three should be forced to roll back 1968 model car prices to the 1966 levels or lower. At the same time, he said the documents show a lack of price competition among automakers and good reason for soaring industry profits.

Car 81 Where Are You?

Ebbing Tide Answers Query

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Car 81 where are you?

Police sat around drinking coffee and munching doughnuts in headquarters early Tuesday when suddenly a voice crackled over the radio at the sergeant's desk.

"Hello, City Hall. Hello, City Hall."

"Who are you?" the desk sergeant demanded.

The radio was silent for a minute and then a male voice said:

"I've got your police car."

"Where are you?" the sergeant said.

"I'm around Garwood Mills and I'm going to dump your car in the water."

Then there was silence.

Police dashed into the parking lot behind headquarters and discovered patrol Car 81 was gone.

For the next 16 hours headquarters radioed all units to be on the lookout for Car 81. Then at evening tide the waters of Abscon Inlet receded. Car 81 was buried in the muck and mire near Garwood Mills.

Peace Arch Model Just the Thing?

THE VERY THING: Need a good conversation piece for the backyard? How about a solid, 16-foot-high model of the Peace Arch as featured at the Blaine border crossing.

The Victoria Gladiolus and Dahlia Society has one and it needs a good home. Russ Eveleigh built the model for the international show in August. It was stored at the curling rink, but now they want to make it and it has been taken outside.

It is used as the basis of a flower display, but there must be some good use for a model of the Peace Arch. Anyone interested can call Mr. Eveleigh at 386-2839. Perhaps one of the peace groups might like it.

SIGN-OFF: Speaking of the Peace Arch, did you ever really read those inscriptions on it? They sound as though they came straight out of Dick Tracy: "Children of a Common Mother" and "May These Gates Never Be Closed." How about, "The Nation That Controls Magnetism Will Control the Universe?"

COUNT SHEEP: When photographers have nightmares, it is usually of some event happening right in front of them, while their camera is a little away.

Columnist photographer Jim Ryan had his dream come true recently in Vancouver. He was in the Georgia Hotel when some shooting took place. There he was, right in the middle of the action. His camera was outside in his car.

HIS FIELD: Remember the Drunkard and the Son of the Drunkard? Then you must know Fred Hill. He was promotion man for Vancouver's Playhouse Theatre Company, but he has left to go into audience promotion. His last venture was with They Tim, Country Joe and the Fish. They played the Coliseum. No lions by request.

COMING UP: When Peter Legge played the Red Lion and the Purple Onion, he got only a fair reception. Now he seems headed for bigger things, at least according to his manager, Phyllis Rounce, who also manages Judy Glinn in London.

The manager says he will be back in Vancouver next month to do a couple of pilot things for C.B.C. A pilot is one thing. Getting off the ground is a plane of another color.

STILL BUSY: Our man among the potted palms, Geoffrey Holloway, is still busy at his favorite chore — promoting the Phoenix Hotel. His latest "gambit" is to encourage people to turn out for the new schedule of dinner dances at the Old Lady of Government Street. To compete for the dining and entertainment business, the hotel has booked a Mexican group, Los Presidentes, to start Sept. 30.

NEW CREW: There should be some very exciting things happening at the Phoenix Theatre this season. Department head Ralph Allen has six new people on staff, with some fresh ideas about what audiences should see and hear. The first shot is Measure for Measure in mid-October.

SAME FACE? NEW JOB: Patrons at the Oak Bay Marina keep asking "What happened to Bud French." He is still alive and in hiding behind the bar at Big Bad John's. The general bartender works the day shift so that he can care for his own restaurant in the evening. That's where he's at.

gown. "It was the opinion of the law officers of the crown, conferred in by the senior officers of the RCMP, that it would not be in the public interest to prosecute."

Turner refused outright to answer questions on how long the suspected spy stayed in the civil service or whether the RCMP knew where he was. Outside the House, Turner told newsmen he had nothing to add to his replies in the Commons.

Trudeau indicated he expected the case would be included in the report of a royal commission study of Canada's security setup. He expected to receive the report "very soon."

Trudeau refused a request by former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker that Privy Council members in the Opposition (who have taken a vow of secrecy) be given a chance to look at secret files on the case immediately.

Trudeau said he would be willing to discuss Diefenbaker's suggestion with Stiefel after he had received the security report.

There was speculation on Parliament Hill, not denied by official source, that the incident might have been hushed up because a court case would have "blown the cover" of Canadian counterespionage agents.

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux told the House that the suspected spy had never worked for the defence department. Earlier reports said the man worked for the directorate of intelligence and security of the armed forces but was arrested after he left the department and joined another branch of the government service.

Had he worked in the directorate, he could have had access to military secrets shared with Canada by the United States and other NATO member countries, sources said.

the factory costs and pricing. Nelson gave this example of how much the four-door Galaxie 500 car cost and what the public was asked to give for it:

• It costs $1,360.38 in "regular material" to build the standard model — fenders, frames, doors, trim, dashes and visors.

But Nelson said this did not reflect the real costs — or Ford profit — because these items were often supplied to the factory by Ford-owned subsidiaries.

• It cost $20.23 for "minor material" such as glue, solder and paint.

• "Standard parts" such as screws, nuts and bolts, cost $16.32. Another $19.98 was tagged on for material transportation.

• A big surprise was the amount of labor cost to assemble the unit. It was set at $57.85. Other overhead charges, such as light, power, depreciation, was set at $147.12.

The dealer was charged $1,872.37 for the standard car which cost Ford $1,603.22, a $269.09 mark-up. But Ford's suggested retail price to consumers was $2,676.82.

LARGE CAKE

However, Nelson said Ford "got frosting on a very large cake," by large mark-ups over factory costs to dealers on optional items.

For the car's V8 engine, Nelson said, dealers paid $75.50 for a $19.22 engine; $136.89 for a $56.24 transmission; $40.16 for a $21.74 AM radio; $46.72 for a $13.01 seat cover; $250.14 for a $158.49 conditioning unit and $10.11 for $5.93 seatbelts.

These options cost consumers even more, Nelson said.

Nigeria

Soviets 'Getting Bases'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet government is the "prime supporter" of the Nigerian civil war and "has been promised port facilities in Lagos" by the Nigerians in exchange for military aid, according to Senator Thomas Dodd (D-Conn.).

"This would bring the Red Navy into the Atlantic Ocean with a vengeance," Dodd said in a statement Tuesday.

He said Moscow gave the Nigerians "large quantities of small arms" and "an air force consisting of some 30 MIG fighters and a half dozen Ilyushin bombers" to wage war against the secessionist state of Biafra.

The Quebec colors will fly above the foreign ministry during Johnson's stay in Paris.

Johnson and de Gaulle are expected to engage in a series of talks, mainly on broadening economic and financial relations between Quebec and France.

Johnson's visit had been scheduled to occur in July, but was postponed because of his sudden illness, a heart attack.

Don't Sit Around Listening To Your Arteries Harden

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Mr. Please tell me in language I can understand what the doctors' report means. It says I have a tortuous and calcified aorta and arteriosclerotic heart disease. How bad is this and what can be done about it? I am 75.—Mr. B.W.

It means you have hardening of the arteries — and who doesn't at our age? The degree of hardening varies from one person to another, but we all have it, or must look forward to it, because it is as much a part of growing older as accumulating some wrinkles, watching our hair change color, and our gradual inclination to sit instead of playing games, and going to bed instead of staying up till dawn.

More specifically, your report means that evidence of the hardening could be seen by X-rays in the walls of the aorta, which is the main artery into which the heart pumps blood.

Your Good Health

The hardening of the arteries around the heart is another way of saying "arteriosclerotic heart disease." It is not unusual at 75, just part of the process of getting to be that old, and there is nothing you can do about it.

Depending on the degree of hardening, you had best be guided by your physician's instructions. Maybe he won't give you any. Or maybe he has placed some limitation on your activities.

In general, the best course is to remain as active as is comfortable for you. Don't, as the expression goes, "just sit around and listen to your arteries harden." Keep interested in doing things and seeing people. Just take warm-ups if you do something strenuous enough to make you huff and puff. That's nature's way of saying that you are overtaxing the capabilities of your heart.

Following that general rule and refusing to worry needlessly is the best advice I know — always subject, of course, to any special instructions which your doctor may give you for reasons not known to me.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would daily doses of cod liver oil benefit arthritis? Should all acid juices and fruits be discontinued?—Mrs. D.P.

No to both questions. Both notions are popular superstitions.

War, Seat Dominate

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The 23rd General Assembly, launched Tuesday against a background of gunfire in several world trouble spots, formally elected Emilio Arenales Catalan, dapper Guatemalan foreign minister, as president and admitted the little African state of Swaziland as its 125th member.

It also was challenged by its retiring president, Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu of Romania, to remove what he described as a UN shortcoming by admitting mainland China to membership along with "a number of other states (that) are kept out of the organization."

DEFEAT FORECAST

A resolution to admit Peking to the UN and evict the Nationalist Chinese regime based on Formosa is again on the assembly agenda, and forecasts are that the resolution once more will be defeated.

Arenales, a 46-year-old lawyer who has wide experience in UN affairs, took note in his acceptance speech of the shadow of cold war debate and warned that failure to resolve differences would bring the risk of outbreaks that could lead to a third world war.

MORAL SUPPORT

Romania gave moral support to the Czechoslovak regime of Alexander Dubcek in its quest for liberalization, brought to a halt by the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia.

But he added: "There is, in relations between states, a vital objective need for respect for the principles set forth in the UN Charter, namely, national independence and sovereignty, equal rights and non-interference in domestic affairs."

Red Talks Shelved?

From UPI, LAT

Diplomatic sources said Tuesday the Kremlin-pushed world communist meeting scheduled for next month almost certainly will be postponed indefinitely because of strong resentment in the Red camp to the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The French Communist party said in Paris it has asked that the international conference which was to be opened in Moscow on Nov. 25 be postponed because "the present conditions are not the most favorable" for such a meeting. The demand was made in a letter dated Sept. 16 and addressed to the Hungarian party, organizer of a preparatory meeting to be held in Budapest next Monday.

Formal Call

In London, the British Communist party said it also had decided to formally call for a postponement "in light of the present circumstances arising from the events in Czechoslovakia." The party newspaper said the executive committee will present the request at the Budapest gathering.

The Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia aroused considerable opposition to the summit and other world communist parties have indicated they favored a postponement also. Among them is the Italian Communist party, the largest outside the Iron Curtain, which was highly critical of Moscow's crackdown on Czechoslovakia.

Defence Expert on Vietnam:

Nine-Month U.S. Goal 90,000-Man Recall

SEATTLE (UPI) — Rep. Melvin Laird (R-Wis.), a member of the U.S. house defence appropriations subcommittee, said Tuesday during the next nine months the Pentagon plans to reduce the number of U.S. troops in Vietnam by 90,000.

Laird emphasized the reduction was the result of "ordinary and methodical military planning" and not the type of cutback he said Vice-President Robert Humphrey has been talking about lately.

"SOP TO Doves," The congressman accused Humphrey of trying to offer "a sop to doves... a peace bonus to the American people" and warned the public not to misread Humphrey's forecast. A 90,000-man cutback would mean that by June 30, 1969 the number of American servicemen in South Vietnam will drop from the present 540,000 to 450,000.

Laird, by virtue of his subcommittee position, is informed on many defence department plans. In addition, he is a member of the House leadership and a close adviser to Republican presidential candidate Richard Nixon.

Laird charged Humphrey with confusing and "irresponsible" talk on the troop strength issue. He said not only would the American voter be misled, but far worse, North Vietnamese negotiators at the Paris peace talks would be misled.

American troops broke through a communist ambush near Saigon's "street without joy" Tuesday and killed 93 red soldiers in a running battle into a coastal valley, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

In Saigon, the tightest security precautions since the communists' May offensive remained in effect amid reports of an attack against the capital before the end of September.

In the Mekong Delta, communist saboteurs floated a mine-laden raft downstream and blew up 70 per cent of the 130-foot Mai Truc bridge about 60 miles southwest of Saigon. It was the third bridge cut by guerrillas since Monday.

Czechs Cheer Hero Dubcek

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechs cheered Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek on the streets of Prague Tuesday amid indications that the Soviet Union is pressing to have him resign.

As though in reply, Dubcek and the leadership of his party stressed their unity and prepared for talks scheduled to be held in Moscow by the weekend on withdrawal of part of the Soviet occupation forces.

Moscow opposition to Dubcek as head of the Czechoslovak delegation was seen by some Czechoslovak sources as the reason for postponement of the meeting last week. One informant reported the Russians made it known they would be pleased if Dubcek and President Ludvik Svoboda resigned for health reasons.

DUBCEK HERO

But there was more evidence Tuesday of how much Dubcek has become a national hero since the start of his liberation program last January and the Soviet-led invasion Aug. 20 that has tried to stop it.

A crowd cheered the party leader without reserve as he arrived at the Prague Communist headquarters. He said in response: "This adulation is not for me but for our leadership."

In another development, the Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo said Tuesday, in an editorial aimed at Western capitals, that revival of the cold war over the Czechoslovak crisis "can only harm the normalization of our economy and political, social and private life."

NO BENEFIT

Neither East nor West would benefit, Rude Pravo said.

In the first such criticism of the Western powers seen here since the invasion Aug. 20, the newspaper said there is rising talk of cold war in NATO centres and that it seems to be a result of cold calculation.

"This impression is confirmed by the present diplomatic and political activity in Washington, London, Paris, Bonn, Rome and Brussels," it added.

BLAME AVOIDED

The editorial avoided blaming the Soviet Union and its Warsaw pact partners in the occupation—Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria—for an increase in East-West tension.

Czechoslovak sources said Monday the Russians have offered to withdraw all but 100,000 of the 500,000 occupation troops by Oct. 28 if Prague's leaders make more concessions to the Kremlin. They reported most of the forces that remain would be posted along Czechoslovakia's border with West Germany.

Extra $65 Hostile Pay Given Pueblo Crew

By AP, UPI

President Johnson has signed into law legislation authorizing hostile-fire pay for the 82 crew members of the captured U.S. spy ship Pueblo.

The bill authorizes $65 a month extra pay retroactive to Jan. 1 for the crew of the Pueblo, seized by North Korea Jan. 23 for allegedly being in its territorial waters.

Meanwhile, North Korea said it will never release the 82 crew members of the Pueblo unless the U.S. government apologizes for its "crime." The warning came in an article in the leading Pyongyang newspaper Rodong Shinmun, quoted by the Korean Central news agency.

NEW YORK — A leftwing publication reported the commanding officer of the Pueblo had its correspondent he deliberately moved the ship into North Korean territorial waters under orders to test the communist response to such an intrusion.

The Guardian, which describes itself as an "independent racial newsweekly," said Capt. Lloyd Bucher during the admission Sept. 17 during a five-hour news conference and elaborated in a private interview later with Guardian correspondent Lionel Martin.

Bucher was quoted as saying one of the Pueblo's four major tasks was to test the reaction of the North Koreans "to the presence of an intelligence ship operating within their coastal waters."

The Saanich Choice

ON SATURDAY, owner-electors of Saanich will decide whether or not to consolidate financially the municipality's sewer systems, including those to be built in the next five years, into a single utility. Acceptance of the sewer enterprise by a majority of at least 60 per cent will mean that in the areas now served by sewers or intended to be served by sewers in the five-year period, all parcels of land will pay a common debt charge of $22.14 initially, with a rebate for those who are on the established sewers. The rebate will be $8.70 a year for as many years as payments have already been made.

This charge will increase as the municipality undertakes further borrowing for the contemplated sewer extensions and for its part in the regional sewer program. But the increase in one form or another is inevitable, and the most equitable way to apply it certainly seems to be to a common rate in the six existing sewer areas and the areas about to be served, rather than to parts of a hodge-podge of widely varying rates.

If the bylaw passes, the way will be cleared for proceeding in an orderly manner to the construction of more collection sewers in parts of Saanich which are most urgently in need of them and to paying the cost of the municipality's portion of the capital region's construction of disposal works, no matter if these finally turn out to terminate in enlarged and extended sea outfalls or treatment plants.

If it fails, two important consequences can be foreseen. The development of Saanich will be held up in unsewered areas, while some measure of contamination remains. And the regional-program costs, so the council has indicated, will fall onerously on the people served by the sewers hooked up to the regional system.

As the minister of municipal affairs has asserted, in an unusual commendation of a municipal bylaw, the vote has nothing to do with disposal methods, which will be governed by the decisions of the provincial health and pollution authorities. It is a vote on good housekeeping and equitability, and should be affirmative.

Voice of Reason

THERE SEEMS TO BE a collision of ideals within the Quebec provincial government, with Industry Minister Jean-Paul Beaudry maintaining that Cultural Affairs Minister Jean-Noel Tremblay's views on the French language issue are those of a minority.

Mr. Tremblay has recently been leading a voluble denunciation of bilingualism, demanding that French be made the compulsory "working language" in Quebec.

The occupation of a school in a Montreal suburb to deny its use to pupils entitled to instruction in English, the march on Ottawa by St. Leonard's angry pro-English immigrant parents claiming they were denied any choice in language instruction, and bitter arguments between two factions in the schools' governing body, were recent symptoms of a division on the lower level. The same state of affairs exists in the Quebec cabinet.

Denial of the right to instruction in English in Quebec, it will be argued, is a breach of the Canadian Constitution as laid down under the British North America Act. But Mr. Tremblay has been urging legislation—Quebec legislation, that is—which would deny what he calls "the imposition" of English.

His colleague, Mr. Beaudry, however, takes the view that Quebecers should retain the right to have their children educated in English or French, nor should employers be forced to use the French language in their various fields of activity.

Mr. Beaudry's contention is that adjustments may be made "by dialogue and persuasion"; "You never get anything by force," he says.

It is reassuring to know, moreover, that he believes Quebecers have "an intelligent partner in Canada." And that "we need the rest of Canada and it needs us."

The voice of reason in such situations is too often drowned out by sentimentalism and radicalism.

Mr. Beaudry's is one which deserves to be heard, and his sensible insistence on dialogue and the ways of persuasion to solve Canadian problems is more than welcome.

Olympic Preview

CENTENNIAL STADIUM will be the site of track and field competition Saturday between a splendid representation of athletes bound for next month's Olympic Games in Mexico City.

The Victoria International Track and Field Society, sponsoring the meet, has worked hard and enthusiastically to present a program which they call "Pre-Olympic Preview." It promises the highest class of performance seen in British Columbia since the Empire Games and the best ever for Victoria.

Officials of the society hope this ambitious effort may be the forerunner of many more spectacular sports occasions. But above all, they believe it will stimulate young competitors aiming for Olympic teams of the future. They have here the advantage of the all-weather Centennial Stadium track, a composition material vastly superior to cinder or turf in the opinion of the experts, and a climate which encourages uninterrupted training. The society's members speak speculatively of making this area the Western Canadian track and field sports' most productive.

No more effective way of generating enthusiasm could have been devised than by bringing these exciting Olympic athletes from the United States, Jamaica and Trinidad-Tobago to meet Canadian stars here. And in addition there will be Chi Cheng, Nationalist China's Olympic contender, lone representative of her country, who must be rated one of the best women athletes in the world.

All are warmly welcome.

Question Period

MR. SPEAKER: May I interrupt the minister for a moment to remind hon. members that we are still in the question period. I realize that questions have been asked regarding a very serious matter, but even though the matter is of considerable importance we should still observe the normal rules applying to the question period.

Mr. Howard: Maybe we should have an answer period.

"Caucus, dismiss!"

Peaceful Uses for Nuclear Power

By MAX WILDE from Geneva

A MONG new prospects of using nuclear power as a key to unlock new sources of energy is that of tapping the earth's own stored heat.

Many areas of the world have underlying rock deposits with temperatures of 500 degrees Centigrade or more at a depth of some kilometres. If a chimney were blasted by nuclear explosion this heat could be recovered for use as a controlled rate by injecting water into the top of the chimney and releasing the superheated steam through conduits.

Professor Theo Ginzburg, of the Swiss Federal Polytechnic at Zurich, has put this and other prospects before delegates from the 94 countries attending the United Nations conference in Geneva of non-nuclear Western States.

The difference between manual earth moving and what is possible by nuclear explosion is of such magnitude, says Professor Ginzburg, that entirely new dimensions of economic activity can now be contemplated for developing countries. Vast areas of Egypt and Tunisia could be opened up to commerce and industry and change the course of human migration.

He gave Tunisia as a "perfect example" of a country where water shortage is due not to lack of supply, but to maldistribution in time and space, which might be put right by nuclear power.

The country receives about 35 billion cubic metres of water by rain and run-off from other countries every year. Of this two billions return to the sea, and 30 billions evaporate, leaving only one billion for use, including irrigation.

Underground nuclear explosions can create vast, rubble-filled chimneys in which either natural gas or water can be stored. By creating such reservoirs Tunisia could prevent the present enormous waste.

Professor Ginzburg also spoke of "the underground Nile" with an estimated flow of 200 billion cubic metres of water, which if tapped by nuclear explosion could transform vast areas of desert into fertile land.

The great desert depressions of North Africa, no farther than 50 kilometres from the Mediterranean, present an equally spectacular prospect. If, through nuclear excavation, the 20,000 square kilometres of the Qattara Depression in the Western Desert, 120 metres below sea level, and the vast area of the Chotts Depression in Tunisia could be linked by canals to the sea, hydro electric plants could be powered by the flow of salt water to form new shallow inland seas.

In this case evaporation would not be countered but turned to use. For, according to Professor Ginzburg, the natural evaporation under the desert sun would reduce the level of the new seas so rapidly that a continuous flow from the sea would be assured for years to run the power plants.

Pioneer work in the Soviet Union by the use of conventional high explosive has opened up new prospects. The Kolona River in the Ural Mountains was deflected into a new bed by 30 explosions of 100 tons each, producing overlapping craters. The shots were so clean that no finishing work was needed to create a new river 1,150 metres long, 100 metres wide and 25 metres deep.

Soviet scientists say the time is ripe to apply nuclear explosives to these techniques, though it is not known whether any nuclear explosions have yet been carried out in the U.S.S.R. for peaceful purposes in the United States, on the other hand, nuclear cratering experiments have been made. One of these, named Calabaz, in-olved a 2.5 kiloton explosion and was part of an effort to determine the feasibility of using nuclear explosives to cut a new canal across the American isthmus. The first nuclear charge explosions in a row are scheduled for this year.

Project Carryall, planned for Southern California, is to make a cut through the summit of the Bristol mountains, east of Los Angeles, for the joint use of a double track railway and a highway. The cut is to have a maximum depth and width of more than 300 yards, and will require 22 nuclear explosions. The cost is estimated to be about one-third less than making the cut by conventional means.

The present Panama Canal, with its locks which are very costly to maintain, will be obsolete within 10 years. Super-tankers and other big vessels already go round Cape Horn. But to build a bigger, sea-level canal cannot be economically justified unless nuclear excavation techniques are used.

The final report of the Canal Study Commission will not appear until the end of next year, but provisional plans for a nuclear cut are already under consideration. These would require 300 nuclear charges ranging from 100 kilotons to 10 megatons, with a total yield of 170 megatons. In each detonation a row of nuclear charges would be fired simultaneously to blast one of 14 canal sections.

The estimated cost is $550 million and the total time for surveys and construction would be about 10 years.

Other canals under contemplation are one cutting across the Aleutian chain, and another through the Kra Isthmus at the neck of the Malay Peninsula.

The great question-mark is still whether the hazards of nuclear explosion techniques can be eliminated or reduced to negligible proportions. The principal one is radioactivity. In contained underground explosions carried out in dolomite and silicate, 95 per cent or more of the radioactive particles are trapped. But, for other types of soil further investigations are necessary.

"It is historically accepted," Professor Ginzburg told the conference, "that no new technology becoming available to man has ever been rejected. There have been time delays, and there has often been great initial opposition, occasionally of an ideological nature."

"Difficulties often arose not based primarily upon the new industries or activities themselves, but because of the assumed or known, direct or indirect, side effects. However, eventually the new devices were accepted and ultimately introduced on a large scale."

He clearly believes the new technology of nuclear explosives for peaceful purposes is bound to be accepted and work for mankind as an answer to the increasing demand for energy, water, minerals, transportation and food.

He is not alone in this view. "No, no, no one is willing to do this," he said. "But noise has been in evidence since the dawn of time. The clap of thunder is ascribed to nature but why not all these other noises, necessary and unnecessary that we have handed down to posterity in our time and whom we blame. Why? Why? Why? Is the pupil to blame for the teacher?"

Yes, we can differentiate between necessary and unnecessary noises only if we see them in ourselves and where they have always been. Need I say more?

Ambassador Recalls

Broken Agreement

In the aftermath of the Second World War, few events have been the subject of more historical controversy than the Yalta Conference of 1945.

The conference, attended by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Soviet Marshal Josef Stalin in the Crimea, settled a number of military questions as victory over Germany appeared in sight. But when the protocols were published in 1946, there were charges in the United States that they favored the Soviet Union at the expense of the other allies.

In the midst of a new debate over whether Charles de Gaulle of France had been invited to the conference, United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, a principal at the conference, provided some insights into United States considerations at Yalta and the events that followed.

By W. AVERELL HARRIMAN

THE fact of Yalta, very simply, was that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill tried to establish conditions for peace.

We discussed, of course, the division of responsibility in Germany and the future of Germany, and in the connection, the British and ourselves insisted that France have an occupation zone in Germany, which had not been arranged.

Stalin reluctantly agreed, but, of course, said the area would have to come out of the American and British zones.

Of the matters discussed at Yalta, there was talk about the United Nations conference to be held in San Francisco in April of that year, (1945). Of great importance to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill was the problem of the countries that were going to be liberated, or were being liberated, by the Red Army as they drove the Nazi forces back into Germany.

Both President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill wanted to have an agreement that the people of these countries, including Poland, would have the right of self-determination, the right to pick their own governments, and not to come under the domination of the Soviet Union.

I remember there was even fear at that time because the constitution of the Soviet Union had been recently amended—that Stalin was planning to incorporate the countries of Eastern Europe into states within the Soviet federation. Thus, one of the important agreements related to liberated Europe, which included, of course, Czechoslovakia.

The declaration on liberated Europe—and Stalin agreed to it—provided for the restoration of sovereign rights and self-government to those people who had been forcibly deprived of them by the Nazi aggression; and specifically it was stated that we would work together to assure relief measures and conditions of internal peace.

Then, and this is particularly important, the formation of interim governments was authorized. I should say "interim government authorities," broadly representative of all democratic elements of the population and pledged to the earliest possible establishment through free elections of governments responsive to the will of the people.

And it was agreed that the three countries would work together to facilitate these conditions.

Now Poland was a special case because the attack on Poland by Hitler brought the British into the war, and the United States, with so many Poles in America, had a special interest in Poland. I suppose I talked to Stalin more about Poland while I was ambassador (to the Soviet Union), than about any other subject. And there was a final agreement at Yalta, which unfortunately was broken.

The agreement provided that the provisional Lublin government (the Polish Committee of National Liberation recognized by Stalin), which we had not recognized, and which President de Gaulle accurately states that he didn't recognize when he was in Moscow in December of 1944, several months ahead of Yalta, should be reorganized. But he did do one thing which we hadn't done: he sent a liaison officer to the headquarters of the Lublin government.

Now, we hadn't recognized that government and we insisted, the British and the United States, that the new government should include democratic elements from Poland. Or I should say "democratic elements from Poland itself" and from the "Poles abroad." That meant, of course, the London government (the other Polish government in exile). This new government, the new Polish provisional government of national unity, was to be pledged to hold free and unfettered elections, and we went into a good deal of detail. These elections should be held "as soon as possible," "on the basis of universal suffrage and secret ballot," and in these elections "all democratic and anti-Nazi parties shall have the right to take part and put forward candidates."

We went into this detail because we were suspicious of Stalin's intentions as a result of the many talks that I had had with him, as well as those Prime Minister Churchill had with him.

There is an interesting aspect of the Yalta agreements that I ask those people to consider who say the agreements favored the Soviet Union. Why did Stalin go to such extreme lengths in breaking these agreements if they were favorable to him?

It was not until March of 1948 that the coup in Czechoslovakia occurred and thus the Communists took over the country. The provisional government in this case—I happen to know how the first government came about because I talked with Edvard Benes when he made his arrangements with Stalin to return (as president of Czechoslovakia) in 1945.

Stalin required the inclusion of certain Communists in the government. But Benes felt that he could dominate the situation because he was the Czech people would be opposed to communism. But since that didn't work Benes was pushed aside. The Czech foreign minister, Jan Masaryk, either committed suicide or, as it seems today, was killed, and the last bit of communism took over Czechoslovakia—not through Yalta but through breaking the Yalta agreement.

This takeover by the Communists in Czechoslovakia was made possible only because of the presence of the Red Army then, as in the case, in the reoccupation of Czechoslovakia. The other countries of Eastern Europe had different fates at different times.

I remember I was sent to Rumania in January, 1945, and helped establish a coalition government at that time. Unfortunately, it didn't last, and several years later the non-Communists were put in jail and King Michael fled the country.

In Hungary, there were free elections in 1945. The Communists only got 16 per cent or 19 per cent of the votes. The Peasant Party won the election and formed a government, which was a free government. But it was closed in on by the Communists. The non-Communists were forced out, and, over a period of time, with the presence of the Red Army the Communists took over.

That is the fate of Eastern Europe, case by case, over a period of years. And the threat to all the free countries of the world, particularly the case of Czechoslovakia, was a dramatic one that made the United States and the countries of Western Europe realize their dangers. That is why NATO was organized. It was not solely a United States idea. It was a common idea of free nations, the protection of their own freedom and independence.

Clearly, some of the plank's contributors are people who feel they must publish or burst. To judge by their graffiti they are mostly of the New Left.

Americans get out of Vietnam and "Viva Che" get a good showing. "Russians get out of Czechoslovakia" has also appeared.

If the calligraphy is any guide, the same few contributors have kept the doodle plank going since it was opened. Only enough, however, of political pattern and advertisement has declined spectacularly in central Stockholm since the doodle plank was erected. This either means that only a handful of local citizens have been responsible for scribbling in the past, or (more likely) that with graffiti officially sanctioned there's no fun in it any more.

Sweden's hold the world record in suicide, abortions, and drug addiction," ran one scribble. "An expression of insecurity." Sweden's recent general election brought political graffiti to the fore although even these were not devoid of sex and sensationalism.

Who uses the doodle plank? It seems to be mostly teenagers but there is the occasional middle-aged humpback with a message for humanity. One day a kindergarten teacher brought along her small charges, who had a glorious time scribbling to their hearts' content. An elderly long-haired prophet from southern Sweden came to Stockholm especially to chalk up his views on politics and the origin of the earth. Newspapers never accepted his letters, he said, and the doodle plank was the only place where he could publish his ideas.

Bold Dignity, Spiritual Strength Curb Russians

Svoboda's Heroism Growing Into National Legend

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS from Prague

The story of Czechoslovakia's soldier-president is growing into a national legend as details become available of his moment of heroism in the Kremlin at the height of the country's crisis with the Soviet Union.

President Ludvik Svoboda bluntly told Soviet leaders in Moscow that he would kill himself before their eyes unless they freed the reformist leaders they seized when Warsaw Pact troops marched into Czechoslovakia Aug. 20. "If I kill myself, my blood will be on your hands and no one in the world will believe that you did not murder me," the white-haired, 73-year-old Svoboda said in Soviet communist party boss Leonid I. Brezhnev's Kremlin office toward the end of August.

Svoboda

The threat worked. As pieces together from responsible sources who had access to first hand information, the story is that Brezhnev and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin promptly ordered the release of the imprisoned Czechoslovak leaders and allowed them to take part in negotiations over the future of their country.

Czechoslovak communist party leader Alexander Dubcek, Premier Oldrich Cernik and national assembly president Josef Smrkovsky had been held at a secret place in Poland. They had undergone the most humiliating treatment imaginable. They had been grilled day and night and repeatedly accused of treason by their Russian captors.

When Svoboda flew to Moscow to see what he could salvage from the shambles caused by the Warsaw bloc invasion, he was given the red carpet treatment. Then he marched into the Kremlin and threatened to hand back the medals he had won as the general commanding the Czechoslovak forces which fought with the Soviets against the Nazis in the Second World War.

This, coupled with his threat to shoot himself with his own service pistol, enabled him to pull off his coup and win freedom for his colleagues. Soon after his dramatic confrontation with Brezhnev and Kosygin, the three Czech leaders were brought into the Kremlin.

Dubcek was unshaven and staggering from the exhaustion of sleeplessness and incessant grilling by his captors. Svoboda, the source said, jumped to his side, straightened him up and shouted:

"Give this man a drink so that he can become a human being again."

Vodka was provided, and it revived Dubcek.

Cernik is said to have entered with his head bowed, weeping uncontrollably. The 73-year-old, white-haired president then went to him, felt his arms and legs and asked: "Are you hurt? Any bones broken? Are you all right?"

When Cernik said he was not hurt, Svoboda said sternly:

"Then stop crying and stand up like a man. We have work to do."

Smrkovsky, who had experienced imprisonment and torture in the past under the Stalinist-like regime of ousted Czechoslovak president Antonin Novotny, was more rugged. He needed no help or encouragement from the president.

However, he is said to have told friends later that the bold dignity and spiritual strength of the old man gave him a great spiritual lift at one of the lowest moments in his life.

Thus, the Czechoslovak communist reform leadership was preserved, at least for that critical moment in the country's history. And its members were able to negotiate with the Kremlin leaders and their allies the terms of the subsequent Moscow accord. Under this they were told they could continue the broad outlines of their reform program under certain severe restrictions. Now they are telling their people they have no choice other than to obey, even though the diktat is hard to accept.

Much of the credit for survival must go to Svoboda, the general-turned-statesman whose soldierly qualities of honor, courage self-sacrifice and perseverance forced the Kremlin hierarchy to back down at a critical point.

While he was the one who gave the strict orders to the Czechoslovak armed forces not to resist the invasion by troops from Hungary, Poland, East Germany, Bulgaria and the Soviet Union, he had become an almost legendary symbol of resistance. By not sending his armies to certain destruction, Svoboda in fact has come to be regarded as the man who saved the country from a fate even darker than the one it now bears.

The choice of Svoboda as president probably was the luckiest decision the reformers could have made among all the sweeping changes they had envisaged for their country.

Had the liberal reforms which were instituted after Dubcek came to power last January been allowed to roll along unchallenged by Czechoslovakia's nervous and more orthodox communist neighbors, Svoboda would have been a mere figurehead. He would have worn the mantle of chief of state with few political powers and with undistinguished dignity.

But fate handed him the role for which he had trained all his life, that of the seemingly simple soldier defending the laws and institutions of his country. He was totally aware, of course, of the hopelessness of trying to do this by the classical means of military resistance when the Warsaw bloc troops moved in. But by unswerving and adamant loyalty to those institutions, he can be credited with having preserved much more than was expected.

In dealing with the Russians, Svoboda's stand remains as tough and uncompromising as is possible in the face of a military occupation.

He is reported to have refused to have any more dealings with Soviet ambassador

Stepan Chervonenko, the man who drew up the list of quibbles he thought Moscow could impose on this country.

As a result, the Soviet Union had to send in one of its top diplomats, First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov, to take over the job of dealing with the still-intransigent Czechoslovak leadership.

Pictures of Svoboda—who, apart from gardening, follows his next favorite hobby of mountain climbing, even at his advanced age—grace almost every shop window, streetcar, bus and automobile in the country as a symbol of national pride, hope and continued resistance.

Support Growing For Right Wing Across U.S.

By JOYCE EGGINTON from New York

Right-wing extremism, as exemplified for many in the tough police tactics at the Democratic convention, is gaining increasing support across the United States, according to a detailed study soon to be released here.

It predicts that the effects of the extremist campaign may last long after the presidential election, creating a serious threat to the country's democratic processes.

The nationwide study was prepared by the Jewish Anti-Defamation League. It was written by Benjamin Epstein, the league's national director, and Arnold Foster, its general counsel.

Both men are convinced that this current threat to American freedom is finding a voice which it never had before in the presidential campaign of George Wallace.

"It is evident," they state, "that Wallace has become the stand-bearer of the radical right in America—the front man in a mass movement of extremism, dissension, and ill-concealed racism, using a presidential election to further its ideology and influence on the American scene."

The report follows a nationwide public opinion poll which showed that between 60 and 70 per cent of Americans support Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley in taking a tough police line against demonstrators.

The Anti-Defamation League report states that, capitalizing on the swing to the right, the Wallace campaign has created a coalition of extremist groups—supporters of the John Birch Society, the Ku Klux Klan, and other segregationists and anti-Semites—which otherwise might not have been possible. The report names names and describes incidents, covering the growth of extremist activity state by state.

Bilingualism Already Dead

Speak American—And Win

By DENNIS BRAITHWAITE from Ottawa

It is now clear that we are embarked on a new Hundred Years War to determine the supremacy of the French or the English Language.

Bilingualism is already dead before its birth: Quebec Culture Minister Tremblay laid the body out. When you think about it, Quebec nationalism never could have accepted bilingualism because that would have meant freeing the status quo and perpetuating an English privilege within the province, a privilege that threatens the survival of the French language.

And after all, the Quebec majority in Quebec is only doing to the English speakers what English Canada has always done to its French-speaking minorities—make them learn the tongue of the ruling majority.

But the issue isn't justice or injustice of minorities; it isn't even a matter of religion, not this time; culture isn't really involved, either, because Quebec's culture, for good or evil, is irrevocably moving toward total immersion in the North American mainstream. French Canadians simply want to maintain their language, and who can blame them? It is language that gives a people its identity.

The French tongue is under attack all over the world, even in France where the hated Franglais spreads and proliferates every day. De Gaulle is determined to save the language; that is the thrust of his imperialism. If he has sent Rossillon or others here as agents, it is not to spy out our defenses, to bug the Americans or even to encourage the separatists. It is the language question that concerns him; he realizes that if French goes under here it will become all the harder for it to remain afloat elsewhere in the world.

The Tremblay manifesto is only the first result from De Gaulle's incursion into Canada's linguistic quarrel.

The general is no doubt appalled by the quality of the French spoken in Canada and is prepared to supply teachers and texts to effect improvement. This is the only invasion that is going to be launched from the shores of France.

In the international struggle against English, not Great Britain but the United States is the adversary. In this century the English language has become the American language, as a natural consequence of American supremacy in commerce, science, the arts and communications and the spreading of American ways and customs throughout the world as a camp follower of the new U.S. economic and military imperialism. Whatever the final outcome in Vietnam, say, there is going to be a lot of American spoken there from now on.

It is Canada's unhappy fate to become a battleground, perhaps the principal one, in the French-American language war. Because all our energies will be engaged in this essentially neurotic conflict, our development as a nation will be seriously retarded. Come back in 100 years and you will find us still bickering over who should speak what language.

Either that, or praise be, one of the other will have triumphed (guess which one) and we shall be in the place where we belong—right up there with the first nations of the world.

As for me, I'm going on vacation next week—to Quebec, where else? I want to get there while the border is still open and English still accepted in the bars.

Tito's Veterans Ready for Ivan

Partisans Arm Again

By RITCHIE W. McEWEEN from Zagreb

The Second World War partisans who fought with Marshal Josip Broz Tito against the Nazis are ready to take to the mountains again, just as they did more than 25 years ago if the Russians should decide to invade the country.

For the last four weeks veteran partisans have been holding meetings throughout the country to discuss measures they would take if their country again is invaded.

Although the former partisans are now well over 40—many of them indeed well past 60—they claim that they have not lost their skill at mountain fighting.

High up in the mountains, the almost impenetrable fastnesses which served Tito so well during the German occupation have been "modernized."

Twisting mountain roads have been broadened at selected points where they run straight and level for several hundred yards to act as emergency landing strips. The primitive bunkers used in the Second World War have been strengthened with ferroconcrete and additional camouflage, ready "for all eventualities."

The Yugoslav army has been quietly placed on an emergency footing. Guerrillas have been brought up to full strength, though the troops have been deliberately concentrated 30 to 40 miles inside the border so as to avoid the danger of frontier incidents.

Garrisons along Yugoslavia's western frontiers, facing Austria and Italy, have been equally strengthened so that the Russians will not be able to put forward the same excuse for intervention as in the case of Czechoslovakia—that Yugoslavia is insufficiently prepared to defend herself against "capitalist aggression" from the West.

Almost daily reports of increasing military activity along the Hungarian and Bulgarian frontiers are coming in, and shortly a fresh series of Warsaw Pact "staff maneuvers" are due to begin—similar to those which preceded the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

But despite the gathering clouds, there is no sign of panic buying of foodstuffs in the towns. And no one apparently really believes that the Kremlin leaders will decide to "normalize" the position in Yugoslavia.

But should they do so, the Yugoslavs are determined to fight to continue the struggle under seasoned partisans of the Second World War high up in the inaccessible mountains which proved their value nearly 30 years ago.

Zoom with room.

That's a tough combination to beat for any car, at any price. Most of the more expensive G.T. types have lots of room, but no room.

The new Fiat 124 Sport Coupe has both.

Takes the room. It has the performance of a genuine sports car. Power comes from a ninety-six horsepower engine with twin overhead cams, 5-bearing crankshaft and an aluminum head.

Transmission is a beautiful, smooth all-synchrom 4-on-the-floor with 5-speed optional. And when you want to stop, four wheel power-assisted disc-brakes do it with ease. Smooth and fast.

Now about room. (There's plenty.) No squeezing into this beauty. There are four deep-cushioned contour bucket seats. (The front seats recline and adjust fully.) And we mean four real-size seats with a view for every member of the family.

Inside, the styling is something else again. Padded dashboard; wood-grain panelling; racing wheel; tachometer; central console controls for ventilation and heating; plus variable speed windshield wipers. (And many more fine features that are included at no extra cost, but have to be seen.) One look and you wouldn't believe this beautiful S.C. only costs $3,445.00*.

But, it does. And for about a hundred dollars more there's the Fiat 124 Sport Spider with 5-on-the-floor.

It has everything the Sport Coupe has, but with a little less room and a little more room. (A real honey of a sports car for the swinger.) So make a trip to your nearest Fiat Dealer and have a demonstration drive in the new Fiat 124 S.C. or S.S. You'll find that action speaks louder than words.

If you've got the time, we've got cars with the room. And the room. FIAT

A London Life profile

Land developer

John Ferracuti explains how he protects his family and can double, and even triple, his money with London Life.

1. John Ferracuti is a partner in a successful construction company in Toronto. John really values what he learned about modern business methods at university.

"Today, you can't just put up a building and expect to make money," he says. "You have to analyse potential areas, their accessibility, public transport, shops, schools, and the kind of features people want in their homes. To be successful a business has to do an awful lot of research before investing any money."

3. "In my job there's the risk of serious injury," says John Ferracuti. "That's why for a small extra premium I added disability protection to my $25,000 policy. If I have an accident and become unable to work the premiums will be paid automatically."

John has also added another clause which allows him to buy more insurance regardless of his health or occupation. That's an important advantage of the Jubilee policy: it can be tailored to your personal requirements. That's why we call it "the flexible one."

2. "My father started me off with my first London Life policy when I was fourteen. Through the years I've seen those dividends coming in and I know that policy is a good investment."

"It's excellent collateral, too. When we were starting in business I needed some money and took the policy to the bank and got my requirements right on the spot. So, when I had a family and needed more protection I knew I'd get a good investment with another London Life policy."

Here are the facts about John Ferracuti's $5,000 Jubilee whole life policy purchased when he was 14. By age 65, $3,363 will have been paid in. But, if he leaves his dividends to accumulate, he will have $12,564* available. More than triple the amount paid in premiums!

Now the details for John's $25,000 Jubilee whole life policy purchased at age 27. By the time he is 65, John will have paid in $15,281. However, if his dividends were left to accumulate he would have $35,050* available. More than double the $15,281 paid in!

*These figures are made up of $3,215 ($5,000 policy) and $13,725 ($25,000 policy) in guaranteed cash value. The balance is in accumulated dividends based on the current scale. While they are not guaranteed, London Life for years has had one of the most outstanding records of dividend payments in North America.

4. "During the winter I referee Pee Wee league hockey games at the Etobicoke arena. Those youngsters can really move. I'm sure I end up getting as much exercise as they do!"

John Ferracuti went on to talk about life insurance and his own four-year-old boy.

"I've bought young Johnny a $10,000 Jubilee policy. The one my father bought me sure helped teach me how to handle money. I want to do the same for my boy."

To learn more about the advantages of life insurance for children, and to find out if you can double your money with London Life, talk to a Company representative.

He can show you how a Jubilee policy can provide protection and build up a nest egg for your later years at the same time.

You'll be pleasantly surprised to find that with the London Life Insurance Company you get more than you expected from life insurance.

Millionaire Forms New Industry

North Vancouver's 31-year-old Record Corporation of Selkirk, B.C., has struck a new "millionaire" in the record industry, a company that will specialize in phonograph records.

Don Ferguson, whose National Student Marketing Corp. has been the stock sensation of 1968 in the U.S.—its shares have risen in six months from $6.50 to $74—has formed International completely manufacturing and general manager of International. He has assembled at the Selkirk offices the most modern computerized record manufacturing facility in North America, with equipment from Germany, Sweden, the U.S. and Canada.

International is inviting its friends to a go-go opening party Oct. 1.

National Student Marketing, which set Ferguson on his way to fame, will have control of International through a 65-per-cent ownership.

PROMOTERS CURBED

The amount of money promoters can make out of underwriting junior mining speculative issues has been restricted this week by a new action of the Ontario Securities Commission.

In future Ontario underwriters will not be allowed to sell primary shares at more than 100 per cent more than the price paid into the treasury by the underwriting firm. The old commission maximum on such spreads was 200 per cent.

If an underwriting firm acquires treasury stock at 25 cents it will not be permitted to offer this stock at more than 50 cents. This will not affect its after issue market price.

Acting as the watchdog of the speculative investor OSC has toughened up its requirements to a degree that much speculative financing has moved out of the province to places where the rules are not so strict.

HARD DAYS FOR IMC

International Minerals and Chemical Corp., the Chicago firm that pioneered the potash industry in Saskatchewan, describes its fiscal year ended June 30 as being marred by "chaotic pricing" in the fertilizer industry.

Declines in the price of potash and phosphates during the year cost IMC $20,000,000 in gross margins or 11.28 per share in after-tax earnings, says the annual report.

Despite a series of moves to diversify the company's business and by improving efficiency methods, IMC net earnings were down to $3,300,000 from $16,900,000 in the previous year.

The outlook for fertilizer prices are still uncertain, says Nelson White, president. Nutrient prices have dropped between 20 and 40 per cent, and over production and distress selling have magnified the fertilizer industry's current problems out of all proportion.

"A return to reason is certain, but it is difficult to say when," says White.

Meantime, IMC has reduced its agricultural sales from 71 per cent of its whole to 45 per cent in the latest fiscal year.

JUDY CONVERTED

The latest convert from politics to industry is Judy Lalmar, secretary of state in the Pearson government.

She has been elected president of House of Harper, a Niagara Falls cosmetic company which makes hair sprays, shampoos, lotions and powders.

WASHINGTON LOSER

Even if the customer adheres to the law, Washington loses the tax it could collect if the liquor is sold through one of its stores. In addition, both the federal government and state lose if the liquor is illegally returned to the United States.

"It is encouraging to hear the amendment has been passed," said Leroy Hittle, state liquor board member. "At the present time, both the state and federal government lose tax money on these liquor operations."

TAXES TAKE DOUBLE

An estimated $450,000 of liquor was sold from the duty free stores in 1967. If sold through board stores, it would have meant $427,000 in state taxes and $28,000 in federal taxes.

"This law will allow the board to have jurisdiction over the stores," said liquor board chairman Jack Hood. He said he has not been advised by his legal staff on details of enforcement.

Uniform Curriculum Sought for Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian School Trustees' Association will ask provincial education authorities to develop a uniform curriculum for schools across the country.

Delegates to the association's 25th annual meeting passed a resolution urging study and development of such a system in spite of opposition from many of their number.

Under the resolution's terms, the association will urge provincial education departments and the council of education ministers to study all provincial curricula.

The study would be undertaken with a view to developing an "integrated educational curriculum" across Canada to reduce education costs and the problem faced by children of families moving from one province to another.

Some trustees opposed the resolution on the grounds that it would be a backward step and clamp the lid on increasing flexibility in Canadian schools.

J. C. Stangl of St. Boniface, Man., who proposed the resolution, explained in an interview that the purpose was not to stifle education.

Under the integrated system, he said, a number of textbooks would be available for each subject in a grade. Teachers could choose which they preferred but a "reasonable uniformity" would be established by this method.

"Today we are faced with an estimated education cost in Canada of $30,000,000 per school day," he said. "A uniform diversified curriculum would eliminate printing needless hundreds and thousands of different textbooks for students and teachers."

It would also eliminate the need for specialized provincial teacher training courses and different provincial educational television programs.

The association also wants further support for federal financing of a comprehensive program to provide immigrants with basic competence in "either of the working languages of Canada" and an understanding of Canadian citizenship.

Delegates voted to urge federal and provincial governments to pass legislation prohibiting sale of non-returnable glass bottles.

Many were being smashed on school property, causing injury to some children and "a dangerous situation" in play areas.

The association will also ask the federal government to amend a subsection of the Income Tax Act so that school boards may designate up to 50 per cent of the annual indemnity paid elected school trustees as expense and non-taxable income.

Senate Eyes Liquor Taxes For Duty-Free Canadians

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A free stores near the Canadian border to stem tax losses. There are currently seven duty free and tax free liquor export stores operating on Washington's northern border. Canadian customs law permits an American to bring 40 ounces of duty free liquor into Canada. Canadians can return with the same amount every four months if they were out of the country for 48 hours.

To make a purchase, a customer goes to the store, places his order, then drives to the U.S. customs station where his liquor is delivered in a van.

A U.S. customs official, paid by the store, is in the van to ascertain the liquor goes over the border. Only customs officers can dispense liquor from bonded warehouses. No taxes are paid on liquor under bond.

WASHINGTON LOSER

Even if the customer adheres to the law, Washington loses the tax it could collect if the liquor is sold through one of its stores. In addition, both the federal government and state lose if the liquor is illegally returned to the United States.

Housing Probe Told

NHA Provides No Help In Prince Edward Island

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prince Edward Islanders told Transport Minister Hellyer, housing investigation Tuesday that the National Housing Act is too rich for their blood.

Even professional men on the island cannot afford an NHA mortgage, said Summerside Mayor George Key, newly-elected P.E.I. Conservative leader.

"We have not had one private housing start this year in the town of Summerside," he told a hearing.

RISK, NOT NEED

"And I doubt there will be one now before the end of the year."

Charlottetown Mayor Walter Cox said the NHA lends on the basis of risk, not need. Yet people on this low-income island are the poorest risks, with the greatest need.

Harold Verge, representing the province's Economic Improvement Corp., said the NHA is geared to the big cities of central Canada.

FAR BELOW

The 1961 census discovered that five of nine P.E.I. wage-earner families earned less than $3,000 a year.

The income necessary to qualify for standard NHA loans is $8,100.

In all three presentations the spokesmen emphasized problems peculiar to the island: low incomes, a scarcity of building skills and high costs of importing most building materials.

A super symposium established at a university and making housing commitments for governments, lending institutions and builders was suggested in Quebec Monday to the higher housing inquiry.

Laval University architects took Transport Minister Hellyer and his colleagues aback with the proposal.

SEPARATE STRIKE

John Wetham, Vernon city clerk, said it was unfortunate the workers took separate strike action against the city while all municipalities are still negotiating with the union on a master contract.

The municipalities accepted a conciliation board report recommending pay increases of 10.5 per cent for inside workers and 9.5 per cent for outside workers, retroactive to Jan. 1.

The 800 union members in the 13 communities rejected the report and voted in favor of seeking wage parity, involving a rate of $2.83 per hour.

Kelowna's current hourly rate is $2.36. Penticton's, $2.13 and Kamloops' $2.83.

Negotiations between the union and the 13-member Okanagan-Mainline Municipal Association, which includes Vernon, resumed Monday. The last strike talks were held Aug. 9.

Exams Left To Pupils

HALIFAX (CP) — Grade 11 students in Nova Scotia will not have to write provincial examinations next June, but they can if they wish.

Education Minister Gerald Doucet gave them a choice Tuesday which could lead eventually to total abolition of exams set and marked by the education department instead of at the individual school level.

The minister's announcement brought little joy to students since they will still have school exams to contend with, and the Nova Scotia Teachers' Union (NSTU) was disappointed about retention of an option.

CONFUSION

Red Fredericks, president of the NSTU, said Grade 11 provincials—as the government tests are called—should be abolished completely this year. He called for their replacement by a system of internal exams and/or school projects.

Fredericks said the provision of an option will cause confusion about the variety and value of Grade 11 pass certificates, "resulting in possible disadvantage to students who may opt for local examinations."

Business and industry have traditionally required a provincial certificate from students seeking employment, he said.

IMPLEMENT REPORT

Doucet told a news conference his department's decision to "phase out" provincial exams was part of the implementation of a report by a committee on promotion policy.

"Statistics presented to the committee showed a high percentage of pupils repeating grades. This continued failure with the resultant high dropout rates is causing a substantial wastage of human talent."

The minister also announced other reforms at the high school level—new policies which "will tend to result in an ungraded school system."

CERTIFICATES

Beginning in June, Grade 11 and 12 pass certificates will be issued for each course completed satisfactorily, no matter in what order or what time the course is taken.

This would do away with the requirement that at least three matriculation courses must be satisfactorily completed before credit is given.

If an individual collects pass certificates in the required number of courses, a "high school equivalency certificate" may be awarded by the education minister.

Court Balks Rebels

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The Professional Golfers Association obtained a temporary restraining order in U.S. District Court here late Tuesday to balk the independence plans of the rebel American Professional Golfers organization.

Chief Judge Caleb M. Wright issued the order which temporarily blocks the fledgling APG from:

- Employing documents, mailing lists and confidential information transferred from the PGA to the APG by a former PGA employee;
- Entering into any agreement with a sponsor of a 1968 PGA golf tournament;
- Soliciting any prospective tournament player to participate in or conduct a 1968 qualifying school.

The judge said the APG has 10 days in which to reply to his order.

The APG was formed in August by a group of dissident professionals headed by most of the PGA tour's biggest money winners. Grievances included demands for a greater voice in handling affairs, money and partial elimination of qualifying tournaments.

Walsh Back In Baseball

ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels gave manager Bill Rigney a new two-year contract Monday and hired Dick Walsh, commissioner of the North American Soccer League, as general manager on a long-term pact.

Walsh, 45, was a vice-president with Los Angeles Dodgers from 1960 through 1966 when he was elected commissioner of the United Soccer Association. When the two soccer leagues in North America merged this year, he became president and later commissioner of the North American league.

Hospitalized

Gil Hodges, manager of New York Mets, was hospitalized Tuesday night after complaining of chest pains during the New York-Atlanta game in Atlanta. A radiologist said "there was no evidence of a coronary nor a blood clot, but some kind of changes were taking place."

Jonathon Tops Tolos

Don Leo Jonathon won the feature bout at Memorial Arena Tuesday when his opponent, John Tolos, was counted out of the ring for the deciding fall at the professional wrestling card.

In the other matches, Bob Shane got off to a quick start to defeat Arman Hussain. Tom Andrews defeated Eric Frolic and Jim Gillespie drew with Tiger Singh.

U.S. Olympic Stars Prepare for Victoria Meet

Sharpening up their passing technique under the watchful eye of coach Stan Wright are three members of the United States 1,600-metre Olympic relay team who will be competing in the Pre-Olympic Preview at Victoria's Centennial Stadium this Saturday starting at 2 p.m. Vince Matthews passes baton to Ron Freeman while Lee Evans, who ran a world record time of 44 seconds in the 400-metres during the U.S. trials, watches. One sad note for the sponsoring Victoria International Track and Field Society was the withdrawal of National China's Chi Sheng, who aggravated a muscle pull while training and will have to pass up the meet. Tickets are available at Memorial Arena and are going rapidly.

Salmonbellies, entering the final after a tough seven-game battle with Vancouver Carlings, jumped to a 4-1 lead in the first period, extended the margin to 8-2, entering the final 20 minutes and held on.

NORMAN TAKES OVER

Portland outshot the winners, 38-33, but had trouble with goalkeeper Don Wallis until the third period. Les Norman took over for Wallis part way through the period and the Adanacs rally fell short.

Air Piracy Charge Laid

Eleven of 56 Killed In Jet Tanker Crash

WAKE ISLAND (UPI) — A U.S. air force jet tanker, attempting to land with at least one of its engines out, crashed Tuesday as it reached the runway. Eleven persons were killed, 23 injured and 32 others aboard unharmed.

The plane was enroute from Guam to the U.S. Those aboard were air force personnel en route to rest leave.

Grounding Repeated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. air force Tuesday grounded its controversial swing-wing F-111A fighter bombers after their ninth crash. The crash, in Nevada Monday, led to the third grounding order since the plane became operational last year and affects 90 planes, including five used in Vietnam.

Government Attendance Plan

Minister Rotation Lifts Brows

OTTAWA (CP) — The government raised opposition eyebrows Tuesday with announcement of a plan to rotate ministers at daily question periods without referring the change to a committee.

Donald S. Macdonald, Government House leader and Privy Council president, outlined the plan to the Commons as it began study of a government motion to set up a special 12-member committee on the rules.

He discussed changes the government hopes to achieve through the committee, then said some other changes could be made by the government itself.

For one thing, he planned to make a weekly report on the business of the House.

Secondly, there was the matter of a system of attendance by ministers in the question period so they would not all have to be present all the time.

However, the present manner of having spontaneous topical questions instead of advance written notice would continue.

STANFIELD REACTS

Opposition Leader Stanfield immediately rose to ask whether this meant the government was going to "decide unilaterally" on the matter without referring it to the rules committee.

Mr. Macdonald said that was correct. He said he believed the proposal would not require any changes in the standing orders of the House.

Mr. Macdonald also spoke of changes the government planned to bring about through legislation.

He said Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford, at this session or the next, would introduce legislation under which certain corporations could be set up by letters patent instead of by a private act of Parliament as at present.

Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River), the Conservative House leader, expressed concern about the government's "almost grotesque obsession with secrecy."

Mr. Macdonald asked him whether he would support the suggestion on an experimental basis.

Mr. Baldwin replied he would agree to have the proposed committees study the suggestion.

Official news accounts from

Champlain, N.Y., as he came into the U.S. from Canada.

Air piracy in the United States is a federal crime carrying a maximum sentence of death. The FBI at Miami, where the complaint was filed, said Bendicks also is charged with kidnapping the pilot of the plane.

Bendicks, arraigned after his arrest in this border village, was ordered held at Clinton County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bail.

Bendicks is charged with forcing the pilot of a chartered single-engine plane to fly him to Havana from Key West, Fla., on July 12.

Official news accounts from

Cuba after Bendicks' arrival there reported: "He said for some months he had wanted to live in Cuba."

Bendicks was identified by the Cubans as a professor of Latin American history. School officials in Williamsport, Pa., said Bendicks worked as a reading instructor. They said his contract was terminated in July.

Suspect in Murder Trial French Security Agent?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Pierre Ginoux, a 31-year-old Frenchman, pleaded innocent Tuesday to a murder charge filed as the climax to what was reported here to be an international spy story.

Ginoux was remanded without bail until Oct. 1.

Ginoux was found criminally responsible by a coroner's jury Monday for the June 26 revolver slaying of financier Andre Dossman at Arundel, Que.

Monique Roques, 24, who lived with Ginoux here for the past two years, told the inquest Ginoux told her about the time they met that he belonged to the Defense Securite Territoire, a French government security agency that operates in France and its colonies.

"He said his job was to go and get papers and documents from time to time," Miss Roques said.

Dossman also came originally from France. Miss Roques testified Ginoux described Dossman to her as "anti-Gaullist," that Dossman had killed five people and that he was "a German Communist."

Police believed money led to the slaying. Dossman was Montreal district manager for United Accumulative Fund Distributors, a French company dealing in mutual funds.

Rene Blais, another representative of the firm, told the inquest he loaned Dossman $37,000 shortly before the slaying to invest in a land or furniture deal that involved "someone in the know in the French embassy."

He said he was told he would get $43,500 back if the deal went through.

The money has not been recovered.

Barrett Slams Freeze

An NDP member of the Legislature Tuesday called on people all over B.C. to join the fight to get the government to end the freeze on school construction.

David Barrett, MLA for Coquitlam, said Premier Bennett knew of the impending classroom shortage last spring in his riding where 4,200 children now are in shift classes. The government, however, chose to do nothing and this is a forerunner of what would happen in other suburban areas around Vancouver and Victoria, the member warned.

JOINT PLEBISCITE

Meanwhile, Education Minister Donald Bennett said the government planned to approve a request from a number of Lower Mainland school boards for permission to present a joint plebiscite for a new regional college.

The college, if approved by ratepayers, would serve Langley, Surrey, Delta, Richmond, New Westminster, Burnaby, Maple Ridge and Coquitlam. With a combined Grade 12 enrolment of 7,500, Mr. Bennett said, the proposed college could have an enrolment of 1,500 by September, 1969.

What a way to earn a living! Children's ride at Stratford, Ont., fairgrounds was too close to trees so fair and city officials decided something should be done. Utilities man went on ride and used his pruning shears to clear way and make everything safe. — (CP)

Engineering Reasons

Minor Changes Approved In Superport Rail Route

The provincial cabinet Tuesday approved three minor changes in the 17-mile route of the Roberts Bank superport railway. In each case, officials said the changes were made for engineering reasons.

Meanwhile, Premier Bennett dismissed a claim made last weekend by federal Public Works Minister Arthur Laing that Ottawa, not the B.C. government, must control the access railway.

"Just tell him I laughed and laughed," said the premier when asked for his reaction to Mr. Laing's statement.

A spokesman for the commercial transport department said the route changes were requested by B.C. Hydro, which was designated by the provincial cabinet as the agency to construct the new rail link.

One change involves moving the proposed crossing of the rail line over the highway leading to the Tsawwassen ferry terminal some 2,000 feet to the north so that it would not come on a curve in the highway.

Another change shifts the location of a level crossing on the outskirts of Cloverdale approximately one quarter of a mile farther from an important highway intersection.

And the third involves relocation of between two and three miles of the proposed route between Bratner, at mile 28 of existing B.C. Hydro tracks, and Claybourne at Mile 37.1.

Students' Paper Organizes

A winter organizational meeting for Mosaic, an independent high school newspaper, will be held Wednesday at the University of Victoria, organizer Alard van Veen said Monday.

The 7:30 p.m. meeting will take place in the board room of the Student Union Building. Editorial positions will be filled. Mr. van Veen invited representatives from junior and senior high schools as well as private schools and nursing schools.

Cosmos 243 Sent Aloft

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia launched a new space satellite — No 243 in the Cosmos series — loaded with radio and computing equipment designed for further study of conditions out in space. The Soviet news agency Tass reported "the entire equipment is functioning normally."

NATO Unperturbed

Soviet Shadows Provide Realism

HALIFAX (CP) — Russian ships and planes kept dogging NATO's massive nine-nation striking fleet as it continued its second week of international training Tuesday in the North Atlantic.

The Canadian forces announced here that no fewer than 18 vessels — including three destroyers, three surveillance ships, a tanker and an oceanographic ship — shadowed the Allied fleet taking part in Exercise Silver Tower off the European coast.

ADDED REALISM

Allied officers were reported undisturbed by the Russian participation. They saw it as adding realism and training opportunities to the exercise.

Tupolev TV-16 Badgers, four-engine Soviet jet reconnaissance bombers, made periodic flights over the fleet Sunday, a Canadian forces communiqué said.

The NATO striking fleet answered the firepower of "enemy" surface forces Monday after the first "enemy" penetration of the fleet late Sunday night. The 30 ships of the striking fleet responded with a combination of air strikes and an array of simulated gunfire.

RAIDERS NEUTRALIZED

Enemy raiders — with the British destroyer Cavalier and the United States destroyers Strong and Bordelon playing the roles of attacking cruiser and destroyers — were quickly neutralized by air strikes from the British carrier Eagle's Buccaneer jets and firepower from the U.S. destroyers McCord and Perry and the guided missile frigate Dewey.

Long-range reconnaissance flights were supplied to the Allied forces by the Canadian carrier Bonaventure under Commander Harry Porter of Halifax.

RECONNAISSANCE VALUED

Following the operation, United States Rear-Admiral Isaac Kidd, commander of the surface action striking group, commended the reconnaissance pilots and said, "They made it easy to counteract the enemy attack."

Tuesday was the second day of heavy fleet air strikes against "enemy" land positions.

Striking fleet units battled not only "enemy" surface, undersea and air forces but also high winds and heavy seas in the North Atlantic. Waves swelled between 10 and 15 feet in the operations area and winds were from 25 to 30 knots. Bad weather hampered force helicopter operations, causing suspension of flights late in the day.

More than 100 ships and aircraft of nine nations are participating in Exercise Silver Tower.

Right-Turn Rule Hits At Lane-Crossers

Some confusion seems to have been caused by the disclosure last Friday that under the newly-disclosed points system used by the motor vehicle branch to keep track of bad drivers, two demerits can be chalked up by making an illegal right turn between intersections.

Motor Vehicle Superintendent Ray Hadfield had some soothing words Tuesday for those who might fear this would prevent them from turning into their own driveways.

The regulation, said Mr. Hadfield, is aimed at drivers who cut across lanes to make a right turn. No offence will be committed by anyone who makes a right turn in mid-block, as long as the manoeuvre is carried out from the curb lane, he added.

There is a similar ban on left turns between intersections, which is also directed at "lane hoggers," he said.

Miss Maloan and first draw

For Oil, Gas Exploration

Lottery Livens Land Bids

A crowd of 400 turned up Tuesday when the mines and petroleum resources department disposed of B.C. oil and gas exploration permits by lottery.

The draw, a procedure provided for under laws covering mineral exploration rights, was substituted for the usual bonus bid system because, officials said, there had been a long-standing lack of interest in the lands.

At stake were 8,702,134 acres in the Peace River block of northeastern B.C. and 208,500 acres in the Fraser Valley. Entrants in the draw—there were 411 registered, but interest died after the first six winners were announced—were mainly employees of oil companies or law firms. Some were recruited locally through personal or business connections and included university students.

Any citizen was eligible to enter the draw, and recruiting was carried out by oil interests so that they would have a greater chance of winning a draw.

The first name drawn was that of Miss A. L. Maloan, 78, of 3200 Glasgow. She was a stand-in for Victoria lawyer Robert McKay, who in turn represented Calgary oilmen Roy Gillespie and John Fry. The principals are affiliated with Alta. Minerals Ltd., Calgary.

After the first draw, Mr. McKay entered a choice of 27 permits covering 1,785,033 acres in the Peace.

Other permit applications entered through proxies who won subsequent draws are: F. H. Laurence Petroleum, Calgary, six permits for 364,

In the Fraser Valley, Trans-Western Oil Ltd., Calgary, applied for five permits covering 156,638 acres.

Total receipts from Tuesday's applications, if Mines Minister Frank Richter approves them, are Peace River, Northeastern B.C., $241,401.75 and Fraser Valley, $9,081.90.

All of the 4,350,000 acres for which no applications were made are open to application by any citizen.

Regional Structure Held Undemocratic

A Victoria alderman charged Tuesday that regional district government in this area was undemocratic and needed to be thoroughly reviewed.

Ald. Robert Baird said the present structure should be altered to "allow more aldermen to have more say in setting policy that affects their municipalities."

Mayor Hugh Stephen said he would be willing to review the present setup, but that Ald. Baird was wrong in saying it was not democratic.

"The regional board only has the authority that is vested in it by local councils," he said. "Whatever authority it has, has been voluntarily given up by the individual municipalities."

The regional board, for this area takes in all of Saanich Peninsula, Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. It has responsibility for the capital cost of hospitals, the construction of trunk sewers and the purchase of regional parks, and will soon take over responsibility for health.

Each participating municipality has votes according to population, and Victoria is represented on the board by three council members. Ald. Baird said these three voted as individuals and could conceivably take up a position on an issue that was opposed to the majority of opinion in council.

Ald. Baird said he favored allowing all council members to sit on the regional board. He said this would enable a "full airing" of views on all regional matters.

The alderman said such a regional board, although large, would not be unwieldy. He said some county councils in the United Kingdom had more than 100 members but operated efficiently. Mayor Stephen said the regional board was a relatively new "layer of government" and it was natural that some aldermen would feel that it "separates them from the decision-making process."

Leonard Ingraham, president of the local branch of the Victoria Hotel Association, said it was pointed out at the meeting that if Victoria did not get moving soon on a convention centre it might well be beaten out by Nanaimo which was starting to consider the matter seriously.

It was necessary, however, that the meeting was an informal gathering of tourist industry operators and not under the auspices of the hotel association or any other organization.

Most aldermen, along with Mayor Hugh Stephen, have indicated that they favor the project.

The mayor added, "However, it should be remembered that councils voluntarily decided to give up certain powers to the regional board. This was a free decision on their part."

"When the three Victoria representatives sit on the regional board, we are acting in a regional capacity. We are not required to refer the matters that come before us back to our own council."

Mayor Stephen said Ald. Baird himself sat as the city representative on the Royal Jubilee Hospital board, but "he doesn't run back to us with issues that come up. He was appointed to be our representative, just as council names representatives on the regional board."

Hospital Referendum Still 'Pig in a Poke'

By NANCY BROWN

Regional taxpayers will be buying an $8,000,000 "pig in a poke" if they vote for the late October hospital referendum without a program commitment says Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce director William Larnick.

"We may as well write a blank cheque for the hospital board unless they tell us what they mean to do," Mr. Larnick said Tuesday. Mr. Larnick and the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce spearheaded a drive earlier this year to have a recommended replacement for Resthaven Hospital built north of Elk Lake.

The hospital board was reported to favor a more southern site.

A petition circulated throughout Sidney and North and Central Saanich asked that the Agnew, Peckham hospital survey recommendations be adhered to.

The survey was endorsed by health minister Ralph Lofmark.

"The hospital board has not yet told us what they mean to do," said Mr. Larnick. "I hope they will tell people in the peninsula what plans they have for this area before they ask us to vote."

"We are entitled to a definite commitment before they spend our money, and so are all taxpayers throughout the entire regional district."

"The board can't expect to ask for $8,000,000 to spend and not be opposed unless they will do this," added Mr. Larnick.

$2,000,000 for Schools

Sooke Votes in March

By BILL STAVDAL

Ratepayers of Sooke school district will vote next March on a building referendum that may total $2,000,000.

The district is faced with an enrolment increase of 36 per cent in the next three years, according to estimates presented to the school board Tuesday by superintendent E. E. Hyndman.

The district, which now has 4,939 pupils, will have to educate 6,740 by September, 1971, Mr. Hyndman's forecast said.

His preliminary estimate of building requirements called for the equivalent of 50 more classrooms, plus land acquisition.

Mr. Hyndman made no cost estimate before the board and declined to speculate on what the referendum will total. He said it will be "over $1,000,000" but "nowhere near" the forthcoming $4,000,000 referendum in Saanich School District, which is the same size as Sooke.

The school board will need latitude to complete its requirements, Mr. Hyndman said.

COST PROJECTION

The $2,000,000 estimate is based on a projection of current building costs.

The school board set March 29—last Saturday of the month—as the date of the referendum. The trustees also authorized construction of three "emergency classrooms" for use by September, 1969.

One will be built at Colwood Elementary School and two a Savary Elementary. All three will be built within existing covered play areas.

Mr. Hyndman, in his report to the board, said "a substantial program" is needed to meet essential classroom space.

He estimated a 10 per cent enrolment growth in the next year, another 10 per cent the year following, plus an 11 per cent jump the year after. Compounded, it amounts to a 36 per cent increase.

The school board appointed

Mr. Hyndman its co-ordinator to plan the referendum.

Volunteers Needed To Canvass

Canvassers are needed for the residential campaign of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal, which begins Oct. 15, chairman Mrs. Bonner Aust said Tuesday. Volunteers may get information from Mrs. Aust at 344-0881 or at the Community Chest office, 333-5788.

Convention Centre

Tourist Men Back Empress Project

By A. N. MURPHY

The proposal to build a convention centre adjacent to the Empress Hotel received unanimous endorsement from representatives of five major divisions of the local tourist industry Tuesday night.

About 40 operators from Greater Victoria hotels, restaurants, sightseeing attractions and the transportation industry met at the Empress Hotel and for two hours discussed the controversial plan.

Sam Lane, proprietor of Oide

England Inn, said, after the meeting, that there was unanimity of opinion among the industry representatives. He said the meeting would be solidly behind city council if it decided to go ahead with the proposal made by Marathon Realty, landholding arm of the CPR.

"PLUGGED IN"

The plan, as outlined to members of city council late in August, would see the city build a $2,500,000 centre on the northern end of the parking lot to the east of the hotel.

It would be a "plugged in" facility drawing essential services from the hotel which would undertake to alter two floors in the Humboldt Street wing to fit in with the needs of a convention centre.

Not only did the meeting endorse the proposal, but the resolution urged city council to get on with the plan. Mr. Lane said.

ENDORSEMENT

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, chairman of city council's convention centre committee, was at the meeting and answered questions put to him.

The resolution of endorsement was moved by Peter G. Hartnell, of Queen Victoria Inn, and seconded by Pat Frumetto, manager, Black Ball Ferries.

Leonard Ingraham, president of the local branch of the Victoria Hotel Association, said it was pointed out at the meeting that if Victoria did not get moving soon on a convention centre it might well be beaten out by Nanaimo which was starting to consider the matter seriously.

INFORMAL MEETING

It was necessary, however, that the meeting was an informal gathering of tourist industry operators and not under the auspices of the hotel association or any other organization.

Most aldermen, along with Mayor Hugh Stephen, have indicated that they favor the project.

what should become of the sewage that is collected."

He says any collection system can't be discussed "without taking into consideration what will happen to what is collected."

"We have no assurance," he said, "that the more efficient collection system will not result in more effluent being released into the bays and straits."

Before any collection system is adopted, he added, there should be a thorough scientific study of the possibilities with regard to what is to become of the sewage collected.

In other discussions of the referendum, about 50 persons gathered at Glandford elementary school Tuesday night to ask Saanich aldermen, Saanich design engineer Frank Nests and comptroller-treasurer John Tribes questions about the referendum. Mayor Hugh Curtis did not attend.

PLENISCITE UNWARRANTED

Ald. Foster Isherwood told the meeting he thought council members should have voted the referendum without taking it to the people, as they could have done. Ald. Leslie Passmore held to a plebiscite, he said, because he had promised the voters he would.

Ald. Isherwood rapped Saanich councils of yesteryear for not cleaning up this "crazy patchwork quilt" of sewerage. "It was ridiculous planning on the part of Saanich," he said. "It should have been done years ago. The city has sewers. Oak Bay has sewers. Saanich is at a very important crossroads."

There will be no debate between Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and Gordon Campbell on the subject of the forthcoming sewerage consolidation referendum.

But Mr. Campbell, a proponent of land disposal of sewage and an opponent of the referendum, will be given about 30 minutes to express his views at the public information meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in Gordon Head elementary school. Ald. Leslie Passmore said Tuesday night, speaking for the mayor,

Saanich Advisory Group Lends Weight to Bylaw

By DON GAIN

The Saanich sewerage consolidation referendum was given a boost and a boost Tuesday night.

The Saanich Advisory Planning Commission, in a letter to Saanich council, gave its endorsement of the referendum.

The commission said the bylaw "is essential to the further development of our municipality and is consistent with good community planning in which an integrated collection system is a basic health requirement."

REGARDLESS OF DISPOSAL

"The commission further recognizes that the sewer enterprise is required in Saanich, regardless of the regional problem of disposal methods. Failure of the referendum will have a serious retrogressive effect on the community."

The motion was unanimous. However, the referendum was opposed by Dr. Melvyn Faber, assistant professor of English at University of Victoria.

Vertebra Patient Walks

A Victoria man given a metal vertebra in what was believed to be the first operation of its kind, has started to walk again, a Royal Jubilee Hospital spokesman said Tuesday.

"This is a very significant step in his progress back to complete health," said Clifford Brown, executive assistant to hospital director Dr. A. C. Pickles.

The patient, a man in his 60s, has not been identified. He was given the metal vertebra as a replacement for a diseased bone, in a six-hour operation Aug. 2,

Saanich Crowding Near Crisis Stage

Passage of a $4,000,000 school building referendum in mid-October is "vital," said Saanich school board chairman Nora Lindsay on Tuesday.

"Unless we get started now and get the referendum approved, then next September we will have to do away with our kindergartens and special classes."

She spoke following announcement that the education department had approved holding of a referendum for $4,054,400. The cabinet must still give final approval.

Mrs. Lindsay said the board intends to hold the vote in mid-October, though no exact date has been set. Most likely date is Oct. 19.

School district ratepayers will pay only one quarter of the total. Government grants will cover the rest.

The district's classroom shortage has reached the near-crisis stage following defeat last winter of a $554,000 supplementary referendum.

"This fall, we've got classes in lunch rooms, on stages, in libraries, even in a former paint shop," Mrs. Lindsay said.

But Show Gets Temporary Hook

Nude Innocents Star
In Peter Pan Parody

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Peter Pan, a University of Wisconsin experimental play that made instant stars of six nude co-eds, folded Tuesday. The faculty and the players feared arrests.

The parody of the classic children's tale — featuring nude co-eds portraying innocents — will be shown to nudes and lawyers who will decide if it's "esthetic."

If they go along with union theatre program director William Dawson's judgment that "it's not nudity for nudity's sake," the show may go on again.

The play, produced by Stuart Gordon, a drama senior from Chicago, was performed for the first time Monday night. It was not open to the general public — just students and faculty — and was scheduled for replays Tuesday.

However, a quick meeting between Dawson, Gordon and school administrators disappointed about 100 students anxiously waiting for the matinee. The word had gotten around. One of the co-eds who appeared in the altogether was having second thoughts.

"I don't want to get busted. It would hurt my parents very much," she said. "Perhaps I was a bit naive. I can't understand why people are so upset about it. The nude scenes are very beautiful."

Gordon told the students, "I don't want to push this thing and get the actors arrested. I care too much about them."

Safeguard Humanity

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian Roman Catholic bishops Tuesday asked the United Nations to launch a study of sovereignty in modern times to prevent further situations such as Biafra and Czechoslovakia.

Bishop G. Emmett Carter of London, Ont., told a news conference the Canadian Catholic Conference wants basic human rights safeguarded "by more than rhetoric."

The request was contained in a letter to the UN. A copy was sent to External Affairs Minister Sharp.

A panel of bishops attending the semi-annual meeting of the conference termed the Biafran and Czechoslovakian situations ludicrous.

"In one case we are told we can't help these starving people of Biafra because we can't violate the sovereignty of Nigeria," said Bishop Carter.

"And on the other hand we have to stand by and watch sov-

solutely despised and overcome

by powerful neighbors."

He said the letter to the UN was drafted at a meeting of the 80 bishops Tuesday morning.

The conference ends Friday.

"We appreciate what public debates within the United Nations have already done to raise world indignation, but we deplore a situation where basic rights of people are cynically violated," Bishop Carter said.

NO RESPONSE

"We feel anguish when the downfallen turn to the United

receive an adequate response."

Bishop Carter said the conference expects the Canadian government not to relax its efforts to resolve or mitigate the Bia-fran and Czechoslovakian situa-

The conference asked the government to build structures "not only for a just Canadian society, but also for a just world com-

MORE DRAFTS

Asked what progress the conference had made in preparing a statement on the pope's encyclical, humane vitae, the panel said the bishops had received a second draft and had turned it down Monday morning.

"I imagine it will go to a fourth or fifth text before we finally have a document that we are prepared to sign," Bishop

Carter said.

He said the authority of the encyclical — "primarily on birth control" — has not been questioned, but has been discussed.

NO NEW NORMS

"We have to understand we are not writing a new encyclical so therefore we are not trying to outline a new set of . . .

norms," Bishop Carter said.

The panel said the conference was presented with a first draft of a text when the meeting opened Monday. It was rejected and turned back to a commission for redrafting.

The committee worked during the night Monday and Bishop Carter said its eight members — laymen, theologians and bishops — likely would con-

TRY FOR GUIDANCE

The commission has considered, he said, all submissions

by priests, laymen and medical groups.

"We are taking publication of the encyclical as a fact and the impact on our people as a fact and we're trying to give them

the guidance and the church the guidance in order that people will have an understanding of it," said Bishop Carter.

He said prime concerns also include "what is meant by freedom of conscience, which so often is not understood, and

and what a Catholic's response

NOT THE END

The panel said only a two-thirds majority of the bishops at the conference is required to pass a statement on the encyclical, but "we hope for a better consensus."

Bishop Carter said a final text does not mean the end of bishops' thinking on the matter "as we don't think the encyclical is the end of everything."

U.K. Catholics
Find Advice
Not Helpful

LONDON (AP) — Britain's 4,000,000 Roman Catholics were told Tuesday to follow both the Pope and their own consciences on birth control.

Few thought this pronouncement would do much to still the storm that has raged since publication eight weeks ago of the papal encyclical continuing the Roman Catholic Church's ban on the use of contraceptives by Catholics.

CLARIFICATION

Within hours after archbishops and bishops issued the message to their flock, John Carr-roll Heenan said he would explain it further at a news conference today.

The bishops backed Pope Paul fully when he declared: "It is against the plan of God to take positive steps to destroy the possibility of the transmission of life."

Yet later they referred in careful language to the role of human conscience.

PRINCIPLE ONLY

The encyclical was a statement of principle, not a detailed personal guide, they said.

"The Pope does not attempt to tell parents how many chilren they ought to have. This decision is one to be taken by the parents alone in the light of all moral considerations laid down in the encyclical," the bishops said.

And at another point they added:

"Neither this encyclical nor any other document of the church takes away from us our right and duty to follow our conscience. The Pope, bishops, clergy

SPECIAL DIFFICULTY

"Understandably many wives and husbands, anticipating the promised statement by the Pope, have come to rely on conscience. In this they have acted conscientiously and often after seeking pastoral advice."

"They may now be unable to see that, at least in their personal circumstances, the use of contraception is wrong. A particular difficulty faces those who, after serious thought and prayer, cannot as yet understand or be fully convinced of

Five Burned
In Fire

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (UPI) —

An earth-shaking explosion and fire at the Atlantic Richfield

flame washing over three big tanks of gasoline and burned

five men, three of them critically.

Heat was so intense it set fire to a house, a boat, four automobiles and a pickup truck a block away. Grass, palm trees,

banana trees and magnolia

trees were shrivelled 300 yards from the fire.

Fearful that two railroad cars

defence ordered 200 persons to leave a residential area and closed an elementary school. A switch engine pulled the tank cars out of danger and firemen battled five hours to subdue the fire.

'Fertility Rite' Interrupted

Om's Sweet Home Raided

CHICAGO (UPI) — There's no place like Om's.

At least that's what police concluded Tuesday following a raid on a south side apartment

where they arrested a man who calls himself "Om — the supreme being above God and all other Gods." — and eight of his naked disciples.

Police were called to the scene by a woman who complained her son frequented the apartment used by Om's cult.

Officers John Brennan and

Michael Mulcahy said they knocked on the door and were greeted by Om himself.

He was wearing a beard, the policemen said. Nothing else.

"Come on in. Everyone is welcome in the universe," Om said.

Brennan and Mulcahy, appropriately welcomed, entered the psychedelic-lit apartment in the midst of a "fertility rite," they said.

On four mattresses arranged in a circle on the floor lay four naked couples, the officers said.

They said one of the disciples

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am 43, my husband is 47. Cal is puritanical and straitlaced in many ways but surprisingly unconventional in others.

Yesterday morning he asked me to fix breakfast for him wearing only the black lace babydoll nightie he bought as a gag. I have kept the nightie hidden because it looks like something a callgirl would wear and I didn't want the landlady or the children to see it.

I really hated to wear that sexy nightie in the kitchen, but agreed to do it to please Cal. To my horror, our 18-year-old daughter caught me. She was shocked and I was mortified. I tried to wet nonchalant. When she asked me why I was wearing that ridiculous thing, I replied, "A woman never knows what her husband will ask her to do next. This was your Dad's idea."

Cal walked into the kitchen at that moment and he heard me. He was obviously furious but said nothing.

'Through with Sex'

He left the house without breakfast and telephoned me an hour later to say I had done him a grave disservice. His last words were "From now on I'm through with sex unless you instigate it."

Was I wrong to tell my daughter the truth? What should I do about Cal's last words. — BLACK LACE TROUBLE.

Dear B.L.T.: Your husband's irritation at having been sold down the river is understandable. Better to have made a joke of the incident. Now you must take your punishment like a good sport and be "the instigator" until he gets over his anger.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 16-year-old daughter has a boyfriend (age 17) who is an amateur photographer. The other evening he took pictures of a family group at a reunion in our home. I have heard photographers ask people to say "cheese" and "peaches" to relax their faces and give a smiley look to their lips, but this young man requested that we all say "sex." I felt it was in poor taste and said so.

Smart-Mouth Kid

My daughter called me a prude and said I am living in the olden days. What do you say? — OUT OF THE PICTURE MOTHER.

Dear Mother: I say your daughter's boyfriend sounds like a smart-mouth kid. If a photographer in your age group had made the suggestion I would see nothing to criticize—in fact, it might have produced some pleasant smiles. From a 17-year-old boy, however, such instructions to adults are in poor taste.

Dear Ann Landers: We are expecting our first child in about seven months. I am 34, my husband is 38. I am apprehensive because of my age and I want to go to a top O.B. specialist in this city.

My husband wants me to go to his uncle who is a general practitioner because it won't cost us anything. Am I being childish as he says.—UPSET.

Dear Up: A relaxed relationship between a woman and her O.B. is more important than the money you might save. Tell your husband you'll cut down on something else and insist on going to the doctor of your choice.

The Canadian Horticultural Council has come forth with the information that there is a bumper crop of apples across the country this fall. And I expect they know.

Anyway they are sending word out that this shiny, colorful, crisp, juicy, delicately flavored fruit is in plentiful supply and is delicious eating.

Admittedly nights are a little sharper but the days are staying nice and warm. Warm enough, anyway that you can still enjoy a salad for lunch.

Here are some recipes the Council suggests for using apples in a different sort of way.

Tuna Apple Salad

1 can (7½ oz.) solid pack tuna, ½ cup peanuts (optional), 2 medium apples, chopped but with skin left on, ½ cup chopped celery, ½ cup chopped green onions, ¼ cup chopped red pepper or pimiento, salt and pepper to taste. Approximately ½ cup mayonnaise.

Pour oil off tuna and flake. Mix all ingredients. Chill well and serve on lettuce with relishes and hot potato chips.

Honey Apple Tarts

5 tablespoons unsalted butter, ¼ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1¼ cups flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder.

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in the egg. Sift in baking powder and flour, using fingertips to blend all ingredients into a dough. Shape into a ball and chill at least one hour.

Roll out pastry dough to ¼ inch thickness. Cut 12 circles three inches in diameter. Fit into muffin tins. Cut 12 more circles two inches in diameter for lids.

Before putting the lids on the filling goes into the cases.

Filling

3 medium cooking apples, ½ cup honey, 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, dash of nutmeg.

Peel and chop apples. Melt butter in heavy saucepan. Sauté apples until barely tender. Add honey and spices. Combine thoroughly and spoon into pastry cases. Mix with water. Put on lids pinching edges to seal completely.

Bake in centre of oven preheated to 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Loosen the edges of tarts gently with table knife and let cool in cups. Use narrow spatula to lift out.

Vietnam War Major Target At Voice of Women Meet

"I would say the most important item discussed at our conference was the Canadian complicity in the Vietnam war and the Voice of Women's condemnation of it," Mrs. Lorne De Girolama, president of Victoria VoW, reported.

Mrs. De Girolama along with two other Victoria VoW members, Mrs. Derek Macdonald and Mrs. T. M. Cox, attended the national annual meeting of the Voice of Women in Calgary over the weekend. Mrs. De Girolama was elected to the national council at the meeting.

"It was such an exciting conference. So many things were discussed and I really felt inspired," said Mrs. De Girolama.

"One important thing which came out of the conference was the decision to ignore, wherever possible, slanderous material about Voice of Women," she said.

The Victoria president reported that because of the "great concern" of the Voice of Women for the dangers inherent in chemical and biological warfare, a delegation headed by the national president, Mrs. Muriel Duckworth, left immediately following the meeting to visit the Suffield Experimental Station in Alberta.

"It was decided at the conference to have four members go into the station to talk to the director while 10 other members, representing each province, would stay outside the gate."

Each member of the delegation was to wear a white banner with the name of the province they represented printed in black, and a black armband.

"The black armband represents the fact that we are mourning for thousands who are dying in Vietnam every day due to chemical warfare," she said.

The meeting at Suffield was scheduled for Tuesday afternoon.

The VoW also hopes to hold in various parts of Canada an intense letter-writing campaign to prime Minister Trudeau, to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, and all other members of Parliament.

"The Voice of Women also plans to participate in the International Day of Protest on Oct. 26," she said.

"We may also be setting up permanent token pickets outside legislative buildings across the country protesting the Vietnamese blood on Canadian dollars."

"These pickets would stay until the war is stopped," explained Mrs. DeGirolama.

The permanent token picket at Ottawa might add that the Canadian government urged the United States to stop bombing and start the peace talks," she continued.

Plans were approved at the annual meeting to hold a conference in Canada of women whose countries are involved in the Vietnam war. The main delegations to this conference will be from the United States and Vietnam.

"We hope to have the conference in the west," said the Victoria president.

The VoW reaffirmed its opposition to NATO, NORAD, armed intervention, and violence on television and other media.

Three new priorities were added to the group's list.

Victoria VoW has undertaken to look after one of these priorities, and that is to make a greater study of Canada's participation in the manufacture and export of all types of war materials and arms.

The other two new priorities are:

"The VoW condemns the use of Mace as it feels this is the equivalent to war within 'our society'."

"The Ottawa VoW be a lobby for all the members at the federal government level."

VoW advocated, at the conference, the establishment by the Canadian government of a disarmament agency; the establishment of diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China, and increased foreign aid to be distributed through United Nations agencies.

Hunters Invade Gold River

By BETTY MACMILLAN
GOLD RIVER — With elk hunting continued to the northern end of Vancouver Island, hunters have been pouring into the Gold River area.

At the opening weekend of the season, a steady stream of trucks, cars and campers travelled the newly paved Campbell River to Gold River road — only 10 miles of the road has gravel surface now.

About 250 vehicles were lined up at Canadian Forest Products gate, north of the town, on the first morning of the season.

Many Gold River residents are taking the opportunity to get in their winter's supply of meat.

Art Thomson of Gold River Hardware said he has sold 200 hunting licences in the past 10 days. He has also sold over 400 deer tags and more than 150 elk tags. Most of the sales have been to local residents.

Mr. Thomson said: "I was quite surprised when I counted up the sales made, but I know that at least six elk have been taken by Gold River residents and many, many deer."

WARM WEATHER
 Gordon Drummond, secretary-treasurer of the Rod and Gun Club thought that it is too early to be hunting at present.

"The meat spoils if it is hung outside when the weather is too warm," he said. "There is plenty of time yet, and there will be an abundance of game when the frost starts."

Tim Timmons, resident guide at the Gold River Chateau agreed that it is too warm to hang game outside at the moment.

"I send mine to a locker in Courtenay," he said, "where they hang it as long as it can possibly hang. The main thing with any wild game is to hang it a long time — then it is delicious."

In an effort to protect residents from stray bullets, Gold River council has erected notices on logging roads advising hunters that a town is close by and asking them not to shoot in our direction.

Municipal Clerk Norman Paulson said he hopes the signs will be effective.

"I would like to see a provincial government campaign here," he commented. "We need camping facilities near town for hunters and fishermen," he commented.

CAMP SITE
 The closest campsite at present is nine miles north of Gold River where Tahsis Co. has a public campsite at Muelchell Lake.

Police officials report that so far there has been no trouble or accidents because of hunters in the area, but they are not looking forward to the season.

Const. Brian Guzda said: "When they are hunting bullets they have to see antlers before they shoot, but in the deer season many hunters will just shoot at anything that moves."

THEFT WORRY
 The season for antlerless elk starts Oct. 5 and for antlerless blacktail deer, Nov. 9.

A spokesman at Gold River Logging Division says that their main concern is theft.

Last year there were about $4,000 worth of "nuisance" thefts when flocks, fire extinguishers and grease guns were taken. Already this season two equipment operators have reported loss of tools which are their own personal property.

Hunters Larry and Leonard Duval of Nanaimo have been in the area for about a week. They shot a "one spiler" the first day and are using it for food while hunting.

Leonard said: "This is our first time in this area and we have been as far north as Port Hardy on this trip."

Larry said: "We see as many as 20 to 30 deer each day, but not many bucks. It is too dry and too hot for good hunting. A good storm would help a lot. I haven't seen any elk, but today (Saturday) we saw a lot of fresh elk tracks. I have my elk tag along just in case. We plan to stay another three days."

Brannan Lake Will Grow

NANAIMO — A $173,000 expansion program for Brannan Lake school for boys, near Nanaimo, has been announced by the provincial government.

An official from the public works department said on Tuesday that the expansion will include a 6,000 square-foot addition to house 15 inmates. It will comprise dormitories, a dining room, hobby rooms, classroom and social welfare offices.

Another slightly smaller expansion, costing about $115,000, will be built later, the official said.

"The new unit is designed to be different from the buildings we have now," Mr. Noble explained, "and to let us continue and improve on the program we've been working on for some time."

He said the addition would provide a number of things:

- Further diversify the existing program of rehabilitation.
- Experiment with new techniques.
- Evolve solutions to problems rather than come up with snap answers.
- "This will allow different approaches and different ways of handling new problems, and therefore we hope to better cope with the number of boys we're getting."

The new unit will be separate from the main buildings at the school and will "provide a degree of segregation in handling the problems."

Mr. Noble said some single rooms would be included in the expansion.

"We're trying to adjust ourselves gradually to the fact that there is no such thing as a stereo-type juvenile delinquent. A juvenile delinquent is strictly a legal term. We're trying to deal with individual boys."

Nurse Saved Driver

NANAIMO — A Nanaimo nurse has been commended by RCMP for having possibly saved the life of a man injured in a motor vehicle accident Monday night.

She is Mrs. Karen Dushak who ran from her house to help Glen Angus McKay, 25, whose car collided with a power pole on Bowen Road near her home.

He lay on the ground, having been thrown from his 1967 Ford Mustang car. She checked his pulse and, finding none, immediately began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart massage.

Nanaimo Regional General Hospital said Mr. McKay's condition is "good, considering his injuries."

Two Drop Loot In Flight

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men, one armed, fled Tuesday when accosted by a security guard and dropped $2,500 worth of property taken from the hotel room of F. A. Giagardi, B.C. minister without portfolio.

George Hearn, 38, said he questioned the men as they descended stairs in the Hotel Vancouver. One pulled a .22-calibre revolver and ordered him: "Stay there 10 minutes or I'll get you."

The men ran and Mr. Hearn called police. The men left behind a bundle wrapped in an orange bedspread, containing a movie camera, projector and clothing from Mr. Giagardi's 15th-floor room.

Unforeseen Revenue Cuts Loss

The city paid out a total of $32,724 during 1967 to underwrite the cost of operation of the Crystal Garden, Memorial Arena, Royal Athletic Park and the McPherson Playhouse.

But recreation and community service director Jack Morgan was well pleased with the deficit. He had expected it to be $40,000 higher.

Mr. Morgan said Tuesday that the deficit was not higher because:

- Unforeseen special events at Memorial Arena increased revenue there.
- There was a cutback in spending on the Crystal Garden in anticipation of the major renovation it is undergoing this year.
- Revenue at McPherson Playhouse was greater than anticipated.

Mr. Morgan's annual report showed the deficit at the city's four facilities, and their attendance, was as follows: Memorial Arena, $17,694, 426,994 persons; Crystal Garden, $31,920, 240,838; McPherson Playhouse, $29,125, 132,955; Athletic Park, $14,075, 33,871.

Saanich Sewer Enterprise

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Q. Just what does the Saanich Sewer Enterprise By-Law do if it is approved on September 22?

A. It will combine all existing sewer areas into one Sewer Enterprise and levy an equal charge per parcel of land for debt requirements. It will provide for the defining of an area outside presently sewered areas which, in the opinion of Council, will be provided with sewers in 5 years. This present unsewered area will be subject to the annual per parcel tax even though certain portions of the area may not be sewered for 5 years. The By-Law will provide for an abatement for areas where a sewer tax has been levied, an abatement which will continue for as many years as the tax has been paid, or until the amount paid on principal of the debt has been repaid.

East Attack 'Archaic'

Apartments Upheld

The trend to apartment living is here to stay and some southern Ontario realtors who would hope to change this are guilty of "horse and buggy" thinking.

This was the initial reaction in Greater Victoria to a brief the Galt-Preston-Heseler, Ont., Real Estate Board intends to submit to the federal committee on housing. The committee is headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

In the 23-point brief, the eastern realtors urge Ottawa to do all it can to help make Canadians independent homeowners. They say this would be the "safest assurance against public discontent."

GOOD THING
Municipal planners Geoffrey Greenhalgh in Victoria and Thomas Loney in Saanich say the multi-unit dwelling system is not only going to become more common, but is a good thing.

G. D. Peaker, president of the Victoria Real Estate Board, said the idea of wanting to cause a swing away from apartment development "is archaic." A committee of local realtors is studying the housing matter, but it is not known yet whether they will present a brief to the federal committee, Mr. Peaker said.

BEST LAND USE
Mr. Loney and Mr. Greenhalgh said the best way to utilize land, because of its scarcity, was with apartment buildings or some form of cluster housing.

Mr. Greenhalgh used Calgary as an example, pointing out that the balance in housing swung to apartments about five or six years ago. If the city had relied on individual homes, it would have had an "impossible sprawl," he said.

He said the Galt area brief, where it pertained to apartment buildings, was "horse and buggy thinking."

GET IT BACK
Some local realtors voiced surprise at another point in the brief, which asks legislation to permit home-owners to write off interest payments against income tax.

"I don't think we'd be dumb enough to submit anything like that," said one Victoria realtor who didn't want to be named. "If they granted you this, they'd simply get it back off you another way."

Most of those questioned agreed that some system had to be found for less expensive housing, most likely through mass production.

Policemen in Danger?

Wives of New Orleans patrolmen assigned to squad cars with patrolmen like Carol Goman protested to police chief, saying they're not jealous but fear for husbands' safety. Chief Joseph Giarrusso turned them down, saying he could see no reason for fuss.—(AP)

Garden Notes

An Artistic Triumph

By M. V. CRESNUT

I could never draw pictures for our apples, and I finished every single art class in public school, right on back to kindergarten; this is one reason why I have never undertaken to write a book on gardening — I break out in goose pimples at the thought of having to illustrate it!

With all my ineptitude with the pencil, though, I did have one artistic triumph as a child — I could draw a recognizable tulip! With grim determination I would outline a cup-shaped blob with saw teeth on top, a straight stem, and two pointed leaves angling upward from the bottom of the stem. If I crayoned the blob a bright red and the leaves green, I didn't even have to write the name under the picture — everybody knew it was a tulip.

My one accomplishment in the field of art, alas, gone down the drain. For the public school, right on back to kindergarten, this is one reason why I have never undertaken to write a book on gardening — I break out in goose pimples at the thought of having to illustrate it!

Some — the Parrot tulips — have fringed and feathery petals, often twisted into queer shapes. One kind bears a whole bouquet of flowers, often as many as eight blooms on a single stem.

One of my favorite bulb catalogues, for instance, lists 24 different classes of "families" of tulips. And mind you, this is before they break down these classes into individual named varieties, which must run in the thousands.

I guess the most popular and most widely planted are the Darwin tulips — beloved goblet-shaped flowers with their long, straight stems. And to the ordinary backyard gardener, we can group the Cottage and the Breeder tulips in with the Darwins, for they all look very much alike to the layman.

These are the Grenadier Guards among tulips — always on parade, always standing stiffly at attention, never relaxing, even when the blooms are fully opened.

A most charming development from the Cottage tulip is the Lily-flowered type, and if the Darwin is a soldier, the Lily-flowered is a ballet dancer, gracefully to the very tips of her pointed, elegantly tapered petals and with extra-long, slim-waisted flowers.

Some of our favorites are Marietta, rose pink; Mrs. Moon, deep yellow; Sidonie, a deep wine red, and White Triumphator, very large pure white flowers on tall stems.

At the other end of the scale are the Parrot tulips, a bizarre and fascinating group, as loose and informal as the Darwins are stiff. The blooms open out wide, more like the flower of an oriental poppy than a tulip, but with petals fringed and feathered.

Some interesting varieties in the Parrot class are Blue Parrot, Black Parrot, Karel Doorman (cherry red and yellow), Orange Favorite (orange and green stripes), and Double Fantasy, a blend of pink, white and green.

The double tulips aren't everybody's cup of tea, and I can't say I am particularly sold on them myself — the earliest look like full-blown roses and the late-flowering kinds are like imitation peonies.

The earliest are short in the stem, though, beautifully proportioned for pot work, and I'll say this for all the doubles — their fragrance is much sweeter and stronger than the singles.

The water-lily tulip is well named and worthy of a place in any garden, and is especially effective for producing early color in the rock garden. These come into bloom quite a bit earlier than most tulips, making dwarf plants only 5 to 12 inches tall, with star-shaped, pointed-petal blooms. Prices are a little higher for these dwarfs, running from $1.50 per dozen for unnamed mixed bulbs to $3 per dozen for the salmon-pink Fritz Kreisler. Some of the newer hybrids such as Josef Kaffka sold for as much as 85 cents each when they first came out, but have dropped this year to about $4 per dozen.

ART HOPPE Explains Czechoslovakia

Shirley Temple in Redland

No political commentator has yet come up with an adequate explanation of the Russians' erratic behavior since they stormed into Czechoslovakia, quickly capturing Prague, Bratislava and Shirley Temple.

First they looked tough, then they looked sheepish and for the past few weeks they've merely looked bewildered.

The answer would seem obvious to anyone who wept over Little Miss Marker, Little Miss Broadway or The Littlest Rebel. It's obvious to me, and my friend, Mark Hawkins, the noted political commentator. In fact, we're working on a movie scenario entitled, Little Miss America.

Open on a scene in the Kremlin. The General (played by Akim Tamiroff) is receiving his orders from The Commissars.

The General: Invade Czechoslovakia? But why, Comrades? What is this treasure they have that we must capture — this treasure that will bring the American imperialists to their knees?

The Head Commissar (smiling cruelly): Little Miss America!

The General (elated): The very symbol of Americanism! The one thing all Americans over 40 cherish. I see it now, we capture her, force her to swear Communist oaths and thereby destroy their will to resist. I shall order my tanks to roll at once. Here are my plans...

The Head Commissar (nervously): The CIA may be listening. Speak Russian.

(Fade to montage of rumbling tanks, blasting artillery and diving bombers. Cut to square outside a hotel. Ringed by Soviet tanks and bayonet-equipped soldiers, bravely stands Little Miss America — played by Shirley Temple. The General strides forward.)

The General: Aha! Victory is ours!

Shirley (kicking him in the shin before being restrained by a brutal soldier): I think you're mean, squashing a nice little country.

The General: What's one squashed country when we shall win the world? Now repeat after me, "Hooray for the Revolution! All power to the Soviets!"

Shirley (thrusting forth her chin): Never! And you'd better let me go 'cause Ronnie and George are signing up a Shirley Temple Brigade to come free me and John Wayne's going to lead it himself. So there.

The General (blanching): John Wayne! But no, he wouldn't dare, not while I have you in my tender mercies.

Shirley (pouting prettily): Golly Whildikers. I guess I've got to use my Secret Weapon then.

(A single tear courses down her cheek. At the sight of it, the General begins to sob, the soldiers lower their bayonets and scuff their toes, and the guns on the tanks drop to the ground. Out to Shirley, marching across the border to freedom, carrying an American flag, to be met by a CIA agent played by Bojangles Robinson.)

Well, the rest of the scenario can be told briefly: Shirley goes home to a bofo lecture tour. The General, clutching her picture to his lips, loses at Russian Roulette. And the Soviets, now all good guys, free Party Secretary Dubcek, kick out a lot of Czech Stalkists and are only sticking around Prague to see if they can't somehow make some.

So it's a great scenario and a great explanation. But so far, no one will buy it. And that's odd when you consider the ones they do.

Candy's Not Gregarious

HOLLYWOOD—The paparazzi in Rome are having a hard time catching up with Candy Bergen—she's the blonde they swoon for and would love to have in compromising candid. Candy has never been gregarious and after a day's shooting in The Adventurers, she gets into her limousine and is driven straight home. No word on what happened to her romance with Doris Day's son, Terry. How can you keep a romance going when you are always making a picture in a far away country?

Michael Pollard has signed to star in Special Bookings for producer Jerry Bick, which Joe McGrath directs. It's a comedy about the travel agency business. Pollard also has a date for the new Fellini film. Both will be made in Europe, so you know he is not going to enjoy the new co-op penthouse he bought recently in New York.

Sight of the week in Rome: Tanya Carina leaving the Charleston and Black Bottom for his role in The Monte Carlo Rally.

Robert Mitchum, always the gent, agreed to be billed below Elizabeth Taylor and Mia Farrow in Secret Ceremony. The girls will be above the title, Robert underneath in a special box. Robert can act both girls under the table or the title.

The cynical view of marriage in Three Into Two Won't Go will be more shocking to the audiences. I believe, than the made scenes between Rod Taylor and Judy Greaser.

The Don Stroud romance with Tanya Carina went sour because Don won't go out with anyone while he's working. He won't even talk on the telephone. We will see if it was worth it when he emerges from the hippy-heavy in Organ's Bluff, which stars Clint Eastwood, who will be paid lots of money. Clint will receive much more for his next film for Universal, Two Mules for Sister Sarah. And how about giving yourself a name like Creamcheese? A cheese by any name.

Ana Southern's daughter, Tisha, is ready to resume her career now that she has reconciled with husband Lal Balam and back home with him and their two-year-old daughter Heidi. She has three films for Universal next year and one of them might be Peter Pan—not as the boyish Peter, earmarked for Mia Farrow—but as Wendy, who keeps house for Peter in Never Never Land. Mia and Tisha attended Marymount together and were wild schoolgirls. They grew into fairly confused adults, but both are settling down.

Talking of meditation, which we were not, I can vouch for Tina Turner's statement that she was a meditator before the recent rash of guru followers spearheaded by the Beatles and the Farrow sisters. Ten years ago, she took me to a class for yoga exercises and we did things like standing on our heads and rotating them in a sitting position, followed by ten minutes of total quiet.

You can bet that the romance rumors between Stephen Boyd and Brigitte Bardot will start up again with all the dings next Thursday night in Munich for Sister Sarah, Shalako. Sean Connery cannot be there as he is still with The Molly Maguires in Hollywood.

You keep hearing that pictures are coming back to Hollywood but if you look at the schedules in the local trade papers you will see that most of them are abroad or on location in various parts of the U.S.

Be Discriminating

SYDNEY HARRIS

We have become so used to high-powered propagandists in modern life that we assume every writer is laboring to convert us to his views. This is why so many readers tell me, "I enjoy your column," then add defiantly, "but I often don't agree with what you say."

No writer who takes his craft seriously wants readers always to agree with what he says. He is not selling soap or automobiles, and does not desire uncritical and enthusiastic acceptance of his views.

What a writer hopes for is a discriminating audience, who will know how to separate what is said and essential from what is silly and subjective in his writings.

And every writer worthy of his craft is painfully aware that, too often, his own personality gets in the way of the idea he is expressing. The idea is filtered through his prejudices and egotisms, his fear, his vanity, his ambition.

It is disagreement — intelligently expressed — that forces him to re-examine his views, to take a better look at not only what he believes but at what he feels. Only a master of meaningless platitudes could achieve unanimous agreement on his views.

And daily journalism, of course, adds another dimension of difficulty to the writer's task. Nobody can say anything every day without sounding absurd or pretentious, trivial or dogmatic, a good deal of the time.

The mere job of running a daily oracle tends to make a man appear more assured than he really is — much as a doctor, no matter how tired or unconfident or harassed by personal vexations, must seem to radiate assurance to his patients every day.

But whereas the patient can disagree with his doctor only by leaving him for another doctor, the reader can (and does) talk back to the writer. It is this talking back that acts as the ultimate curb on a writer's conceit or umbrage, and permits him to examine himself with the same candor he scrutinizes the rest of the world.

Disagreement and discrimination are the tools of personal growth. We learn nothing from those who agree us (which is why public heroes so often betray themselves in the end), and we gain nothing from those who applaud our views merely because they happen to coincide with theirs.

All a writer has a right to ask is a little comprehension of his aims, and a little charity toward his misuses.

Tax Lottery Illegal, Montreal to Appeal

MONTREAL (CP) — Lucien Saulnier, chairman of Montreal's executive committee, announced Tuesday the city will continue its voluntary tax scheme despite a Quebec Court of Appeals decision that judged it illegal.

It was "most probable" that "we will instruct our legal department to seek a reversal of the decision from the Supreme Court of Canada," Saulnier said after learning of the appeals court decision earlier Tuesday.

Servant Went Free

Ministers Mum In Spy Case

OTTAWA (UPI) — The government adamantly refused Tuesday to disclose details of a spy case involving a former civil servant who reportedly tried to peddle military secrets but was let off "in the public interest."

The case, now "closed" according to Justice Minister John Turner, involved a handsome, well-educated but unknown civil servant who, informed government sources said, tried to sell information to an unnamed foreign power.

Prime Minister Trudeau was justice minister in the government of Lester Pearson when the case arose.

Informants in Ottawa confirmed a report in the Toronto Star that the civil servant was arrested in 1966 by Royal Canadian Mounted Police posing as agents of the foreign power. Turner, under heavy questioning in the House of Commons, said that a man suspected of spying was investigated by the RCMP but that no charges were laid against him.

"In the absence of charges being preferred it would not be proper nor would it be in the public interest to make the results of such investigations a matter of public record," Turner told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

Belgrade Turning To West

Spiljak declared in a parliamentary speech that "in the present worsened international situation, Yugoslavia is ready to improve co-operation with all countries, regardless whether they are socialist or otherwise."

The speech, which catalogued Yugoslav relations in Europe, included a renewed condemnation of the Soviet intervention. Spiljak said Moscow's action meant a "speeding up the armaments race and increasing tension and instability in inter-European and international relations."

Military police fire at students in Mexico City

Snipers' Bullets Fly

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Student snipers battled police and army troops late Tuesday in Mexico City's worst fighting since the revolutionary days of the 1920s. A hospital official said at least 15 persons were killed in 24 hours of gun battles.

"It's still dangerous as hell out there," said an ambulance driver who delivered a wounded student to the hospital. Nearby armed students on the roof of the National Polytechnical Institute could be heard firing on police and soldiers.

But unless the fighting grows completely out of control, the Olympic Games will open on schedule Oct. 12, authorities said.

TOLL HIGHER

More than 400 assault cars ringed the Santo Tomas Vocational School, part of the larger institute campus that was occupied by the army after an all-night battle.

The hospital official said the figure of 15 known dead is less than the actual death toll because students were seen hauling away some bodies as troops advanced on the vocational school before dawn.

The same official said about 35 persons had been wounded, some of them seriously. They included bystanders and passengers on a bus gunned down by night riders early Tuesday. One man on the bus was shot in the head five times, he said.

STREETS LITTERED

It was the most serious crisis President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz has faced in his four years of office.

The sniping was so intense that troops occupying the vocational school pulled back to positions around the walls. Nearby streets were littered with the remains of burned out buses, trucks and cars.

"You are here at your own risk," warned a policeman. "The area has not been secured."

FIRE AT POLICE

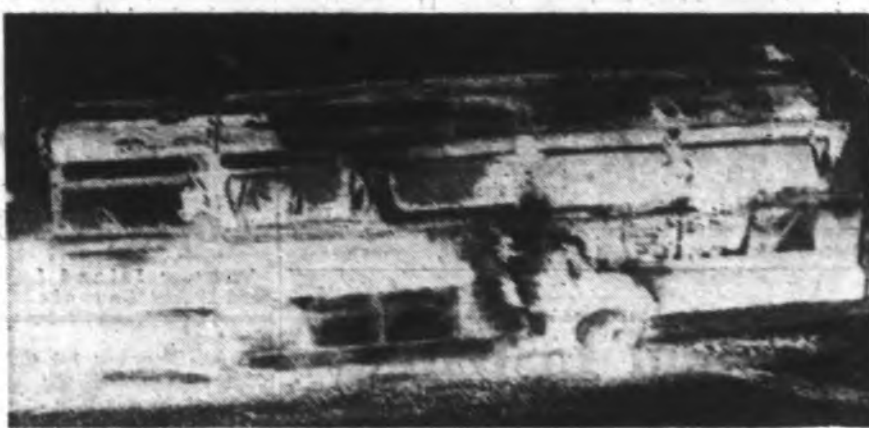

Police said carloads of students cruised the area in the early-morning hours picking off policemen and hurling gasoline fire-bombs at buses commandeered by riot police. One policeman was seriously injured when a gasoline bomb exploded in his lap.

Besides demanding the dismissal of several Mexico City police officials, the students have made a host of other complaints. One of them is that the conservative Institutional Revolutionary Party has controlled Mexican political life too long. The party has won every presidential and gubernatorial election since its formation in 1929.

They are also demanding that the hated "grenaderos"—riot police—be disbanded, and that an anti-subversion clause be removed from the federal penal code.

De Gaulle's Red Carpet Awaits Daniel Johnson

From AP-Boston

PARIS — Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec will be received in Paris next month with the honors usually reserved for a visiting head of government, a spokesman at Quebec House disclosed Tuesday.

From the time he arrives Oct. 11 to the hour of his departure Oct. 16, Johnson will be accorded red-carpet treatment.

It was expected the protocol arrangements would increase the strain on relations between Paris and Ottawa regarding French-speaking Canada, and especially Quebec.

The Quebec House spokesman said Johnson probably will be met at the airport by de Gaulle's premier, Maurice Couve de Murville.

From there, Johnson will be conducted to the royal apartments of the French foreign ministry on the Quai d'Orsay, overlooking the Seine.

Quebec Chief On Air Today

Premier Daniel Johnson's press conference will be carried by the CBC radio and television networks today in English and French. It will be heard live in B.C. on CBU radio, 680, at 8 a.m. PDT, and delayed on CBU-TV, Channel 2, at 11 a.m.

France's official guests at the Quai d'Orsay in the last 15 years have included the Queen and Prince Philip, former U.S. president Dwight Eisenhower, former Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and President Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

From the Quai d'Orsay, Johnson will move on to the Grand Trianon Palace at Versailles, where de Gaulle will be his host at a state dinner.

De Gaulle's only other guests at Trianon since it was restored to its former splendor have been the Queen, Prince Philip and Prime Minister Wilson of Britain. In return, Johnson will be

'Extras' Profits Soaring

PENTICTON (CP) — Two women charged with theft in the disappearance of nearly $500,000 from a Penticton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada were remanded to Oct. 1 on $10,000 bail Tuesday.

Prosecutor Brian Weddell said the amount missing was $482,000 when the women appeared before Magistrate Ross D. Oulver.

Ann Kathleen Spiller, 36, a five-year bank employee, was charged with falsifying bank records and with theft over $50.

The two women live together at a home in nearby Naramata.

RCMP said they believe the cash shortage occurred over a two-year period. It was discovered by a bank auditor.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senator Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.), Tuesday made public what he said was the biggest secret in American industry—the actual cost of building a U.S. car. He used his figures to call for a rollback on all car prices.

Nelson showed reporters what he said was Ford's unit cost analysis, done by a computer, on all its 1968 model cars and the company's list price recommendations.

The figures generally showed that the car maker didn't make an excess profit on what he charged the dealer for the basic car, but there was plenty of profit in what the dealer added to the customer and what the manufacturer charged the dealer for so-called extras.

UP TO 235 PER CENT

A four-door Galaxie 500, for example, cost the dealer 16.8 per cent more than it cost the builder to make. But optional equipment—usually amounting to a third of the selling price—was marked up between 57.8 per cent and 235 per cent over cost, Nelson's figures showed.

Nelson said the Ford documents were submitted to his Senate subcommittee on small business monopoly by safety critic Ralph Nader. After weeks of analysis by the subcommittee staff, Nelson said "there was no doubt about the authenticity of the documents. This is the real stuff."

REFUSED TO SAY

Despite requests by the Justice department, federal safety officials, the United Auto Workers union and other organizations, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler have refused to disclose the cost of building a car.

Nelson said GM and Chrysler probably followed similar patterns in construction costs and pricing.

Nelson said that the data showed that the Big Three should be forced to roll back 1969 model car prices to the 1968 levels or lower. At the same time, he said the documents show a lack of price competition among automakers and good reason for soaring industry profits.

Car 81 Where Are You?

Ebbing Tide Answers Query

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Car 81 where are you?

Police sat around drinking coffee and munching doughnuts in headquarters early Tuesday when suddenly a voice crackled over the radio at the sergeant's desk.

"Hello, City Hall. Hello, City Hall."

"Who are you?" the desk sergeant demanded.

The radio was silent for a minute and then a male voice said:

"I've got your police car."

"Where are you?" the sergeant said.

"I'm around Garwood Mills and I'm going to dump your car in the water."

Then there was silence.

Police dashed into the parking lot behind headquarters and discovered patrol Car 81 was gone.

For the next 10 hours headquarters ridged all units to be on the lookout for Car 81. Then at evening tide the waters of Abscon Inlet receded, Car 81 was buried in the muck and mire near Garwood Mills.

War, Seat Dominate

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The 23rd General Assembly, launched Tuesday against a background of gunfire in several world trouble spots, formally elected Emilio Arenales Catalan, dapper Guatemalan foreign minister, as president and admitted the little African state of Swaziland as its 125th member.

It also was challenged by its retiring president, Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu of Romania, to remove what he described as a UN shortcoming by admitting mainland China to membership along with "a number of other states (that) are kept out of the organization."

DEFEAT FORECAST

A resolution to admit Peking to the UN and evict the Nationalist Chinese regime based on Formosa is again on the assembly agenda, and forecasts are that the resolution once more will be defeated.

Arenales, a 46-year-old lawyer who has wide experience in UN affairs, took note in his acceptance speech of the shadow of cold war debate and warned that failure to resolve differences would bring the risk of outbreaks that could lead to a third world war.

Manescu, in laying down the burden of president handed to him a year ago, mentioned two of the world's trouble spots: Vietnam and the Middle East but said not a word about Czechoslovakia.

MORAL SUPPORT

Romania gave moral support to the Czechoslovak regime of Alexander Dubcek in its quest for liberalization, brought to a halt by the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia.

Diplomats View Tension

Red Talks Shelved?

From UPI, L.A.T.

Diplomatic sources said Tuesday the Kremlin-pushed world communist meeting scheduled for next month almost certainly will be postponed indefinitely because of strong resentment in the Red camp to the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The French Communist party said in Paris it has asked that the international conference which was to open in Moscow on Nov. 25 be postponed because "the present conditions are not the most favorable" for such a meeting. The demand was made in a letter dated Sept. 16 and addressed to the Hungarian party, organizer of a preparatory meeting to be held in Budapest next Monday.

Formal Call

In London, the British Communist party said it also had decided to formally call for a postponement "in light of the present circumstances arising from the events in Czechoslovakia." The party newspaper said the executive committee will present the request at the Budapest gathering.

Laird

Defence Expert on Vietnam:

Nine-Month U.S. Goal 90,000-Man Recall

SEATTLE (UPI) — Rep. Melvin Laird (R-Wis.), a member of the U.S. house defense appropriations subcommittee, said Tuesday during the next nine months the Pentagon plans to reduce the number of U.S. troops in Vietnam by 90,000.

Laird emphasized the reduction was the result of "ordinary and methodical military planning" and not the type of cutback he said Vice-President Hubert Humphrey has been talking about lately.

"SOP TO Doves": The congressman accused Humphrey of trying to offer a sop to doves... a peace bonus to the American people" and warned the public not to misread Humphrey's forecast. A 90,000-man cutback would mean that by June 30, 1969 the number of American servicemen in South Vietnam will drop from the present 540,000 to 450,000.

Laird, by virtue of his subcommittee position, is informed on many defence department plans. In addition, he is a member of the House leadership and a close adviser to Republican presidential candidate Richard Nixon.

Laird charged Humphrey with confusing and "irresponsible" talk on the troop strength issue. He said not only would the American voter be misled, but far worse, North Vietnamese negotiators at the Paris peace talks would be misled.

American troops broke through a communist ambush near Saigon's "street without joy" Tuesday and killed 93 red soldiers in a running battle into a coastal valley, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

In Saigon, the tightest security precautions since the communists' May offensive remained in effect amid reports of an attack against the capital before the end of September.

In the Mekong Delta, communist saboteurs boated a mine-laden raft downstream and blew up 70 per cent of the 150-foot Mai Truc bridge about 60 miles southwest of Saigon. It was the third bridge cut by guerrillas since Monday.

Maintain Forces — Bonn

OTTAWA (CP) — West Germany has appealed to all NATO members, including Canada, to maintain the strength of the Atlantic alliance in the light of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, the Commons learned Tuesday.

External Affairs Minister Sharp, answering J.-Eugene MacLennan (PC—Montreal), said Canada has had representations from a number of countries about maintenance of force levels but these were not directed at Canada specifically.

CONCERN VOKED

A number of countries are "very concerned" about the new situation brought about by the Soviet attack on Czechoslovakia, Sharp said.

West Germany, for instance, had made representations to all the NATO powers, including Canada.

The Commons exchange took place against the background of the visit here Monday of NATO Secretary-General Manlio Brosio.

Sharp stated that Brosio had not asked, in his talks with Canadian leaders, for an assurance that Canadian forces in Europe will be maintained intact.

Red Scapegoat?

Czechs Cheer Hero Dubcek

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovak cheered Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek on the streets of Prague Tuesday amid indications that the Soviet Union is pressing to have him resign.

As though in reply, Dubcek and the leadership of his party stressed their unity and prepared for talks scheduled to be held in Moscow by the weekend on withdrawal of part of the Soviet-led occupation forces.

Moscow opposition to Dubcek as head of the Czechoslovak delegation was seen by some Czechoslovak sources as the reason for postponement of the meeting last week. One informant reported the Russians made it known they would be pleased if Dubcek and President Ludvik Svoboda resigned for health reasons.

DUBCEK HERO

But there was more evidence Tuesday of how much Dubcek has become a national hero since the start of his liberation program last January and the Soviet-led invasion Aug. 20 that has tried to stop it.

A crowd cheered the party leader without reserve as he arrived at the Prague Communist headquarters. He said in response: "This adulation is not for me but for our leadership."

In another development, the Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo said Tuesday, in an editorial aimed at Western capitals, that revival of the cold war over the Czechoslovak crisis "can only harm the normalization of our economy and political, social and private life."

NO BENEFIT

Neither East nor West would benefit, Rude Pravo said.

In the first such criticism of the Western powers seen here since the invasion Aug. 20, the newspaper said there is rising talk of cold war in NATO centres and that it seems to be a result of cold calculation.

"This impression is confirmed by the present diplomatic and political activity in Washington, London, Paris, Bonn, Rome and Brussels," it added.

BLAME AVOIDED

The editorial avoided blaming the Soviet Union and its Warsaw pact partners in the occupation—Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria—for an increase in East-West tension.

Czechoslovak sources said Monday the Russians have offered to withdraw all but 100,000 of the 500,000 occupation troops by Oct. 28 if Prague's leaders make more concessions to the Kremlin. They reported most of the forces that remain would be posted along Czechoslovakia's border with West Germany.

SECOND IN SIZE

Economics

In Bucharest, Paul Niculescu-Mizil, head of Romanian communist relations with other parties, returned from Bucharest Tuesday after agreeing to participate in the preparatory talks.

At the same time, Romania announced the departure of its delegation to Moscow for a session of the Communist Economic Co-operation Organization.

Neither action was seen as a surprise here, but both gave the Romanian leaders an opportunity to demonstrate their loyalty to their socialist friends and thus ease any suspicion that Moscow may have following the sharp criticism of the Czechoslovak invasion.

Bickering

Niculescu-Mizil had talks in Budapest Monday with Komocsin Zoltan, secretary of the Hungarian Communist party.

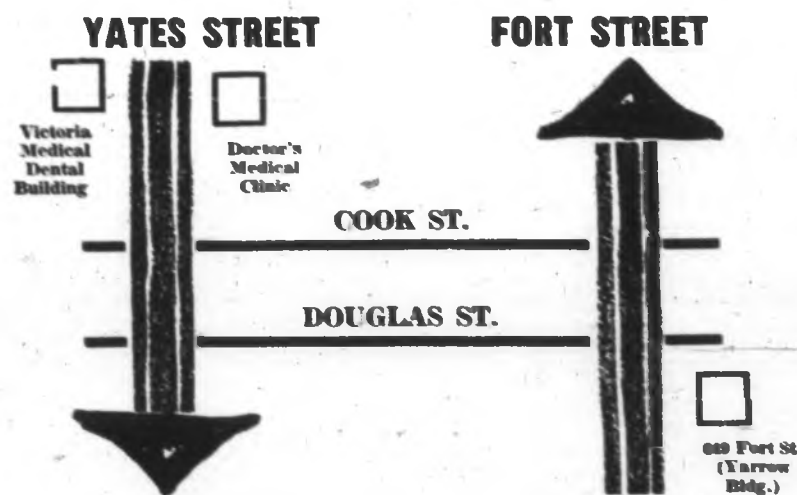

What remains to be seen now is whether guidelines have been established to avoid a repetition of the fight in February when the Syrian delegation criticized Romania's independent foreign policy in the Middle East.

Extra $65 Hostile Pay Award Pueblo Crew

By AP, UPI

President Johnson has signed into law legislation authorizing hostile-fire pay for the 82 crew members of the captured U.S. spy ship Pueblo.

The bill authorizes $65 a month extra pay retroactive to Jan. 1 for the crew of the Pueblo, seized by North Korea Jan. 23 for allegedly being in its territorial waters.

Meanwhile, North Korea said it will never release the 82 crew members of the Pueblo unless the U.S. government apologizes for its "crime." The warning came in an article in the leading Pyongyang newspaper Rodong Shinmun, quoted by the Korean Central news agency.

NEW YORK — A leftwing publication reported the commanding officer of the Pueblo told its correspondent he deliberately moved the ship into North Korean territorial waters under orders to test the communist response to such an intrusion.

The Guardian, which describes itself as an "independent radical newsweekly," said Capt. Lloyd Bucher made the admission Sept. 12 during a five-hour news conference and elaborated in a private interview later with Guardian correspondent Lionel Martin. Bucher was quoted as saying one of the Pueblo's four major tasks was to test the reaction of the North Koreans "to the presence of an intelligence ship operating within their coastal waters."

Residents Join Big Shoot

Story and Picture
By BETTY MACMILLAN

GOLD RIVER — With elk hunting confined to the northern end of Vancouver Island, hunters have been pouring into the Gold River area.

At the opening weekend of the season, a steady stream of trucks, cars and campers travelled the newly-paved Campbell River to Gold River road — only 10 miles of the road has gravel surface now.

About 250 vehicles were lined up at Canadian Forest Products gate, north of the town, on the first morning of the season.

MEAT SUPPLY

Many Gold River residents are taking the opportunity to get in their winter's supply of meat.

Art Thomson of Gold River Hardware said he has sold 200 hunting licences in the past 10 days. He has also sold over 400 deer tags and more than 150 elk tags. Most of the sales have been to local residents.

Mr. Thomson said: "I was quite surprised when I counted up the sales made, but I knew that at least six elk have been taken by Gold River residents and many, many deer."

WARM WEATHER

Gordon Drummond, secretary-treasurer of the Rod and Gun Club thought that it is too early to be hunting at present.

"The meat spoils if it is hung outside when the weather is too warm," he said. "There is plenty of time yet, and there will be an abundance of game when the frost starts."

Tim Timmons, resident guide at the Gold River Chalet agreed that it is too warm to hang game outside at the moment.

STRAY BULLETS

In an effort to protect residents from stray bullets, Gold River council has erected notices on logging roads advising hunters that a town is close by and asking them not to shoot in our direction.

Municipal Clerk Norman Paulson said he hopes the signs will be effective.

"I would like to see a provincial government campsite here," he said. "We need camping facilities near town for hunters and fishermen," he commented.

COMPANY SITE

The chosen campsite at present is nine miles north of Gold River where Tahsis Co. has a public campsite at Muchalet Lake.

Police officials report that so far there has been no trouble or accidents because of hunters in the area, but they are not looking forward to the season.

Const. Brian Gaud said: "When they are hunting bucks they have to see antlers before they shoot, but in the deer season many hunters will just shoot at anything that moves."

THEFT WORRY

The season for antler-less elk starts Oct. 5 and for antler-less blacktail deer, Nov. 9.

A spokesman at Gold River Logging Division says that their main concern is theft.

Last year there were about 14,000 worth of "misadventures" — thefts of tools, fire extinguishers and grease guns were taken. Already this season two equipment operators have reported loss of tools which are their own personal property.

Hunters Larry and Leonard Duval of Nanaimo have been in the area for about a week. They shot a "one pointer" the first day and are using it for food while hunting.

Larry said: "We see as many as 20 to 30 does each day, but not many bucks. It is too dry and too hot for good hunting. A good storm would help a lot. We haven't seen any elk, but today (Saturday) we saw a lot of fresh elk tracks. I have my elk tag along just in case. We plan to stay another three days."

MOTOR CYCLE HELPS

The Duvals are travelling in a camper, with a motorcycle on the front.

"We find the motorcycle very useful," said Larry. "The camper is too cumbersome for the logging roads, so we use the cycle a lot on roads where the camper would be shaken to pieces."

Nearly $2,000,000

Port Alberni Bonds Sold After Delay

PORT ALBERNI — Nearly $2,000,000 in city bonds, which were held by the city for a considerable period of time due to a depressed market, have now been almost all disposed of, Port Alberni City Council was told Monday night.

A letter from the Bank of Montreal indicated an investment of $273,500 in one to 10 year debentures by the bank's main office. Jim Sayer, acting city manager, said he had been advised by the syndicate handling the sale of the bonds that it had disposed of a further $1,625,000 worth.

"There now remains $363,000 to be placed out of the entire issue,"

Council also agreed to remain a member of the Better Business Bureau. The original city of Port Alberni was a member for a couple of years before amalgamation.

Benefits include having a bureau located in Nanaimo, considerably more accessible than the former Vancouver location, council was told.

City officials use the bureau to check the credentials of applicants for business licences in the city and citizens wishing to check with the bureau might expect better service because of the city's affiliation it was stated.

Referendum Permission

A letter from Dr. C. Begg, on behalf of the medical staff of West Coast General Hospital was referred to the health and welfare committee.

Dr. Begg wrote: "It is the feeling of the medical staff of West Coast General Hospital that, in view of the scarcity of dentists, a move toward fluoridation of the local water supply should be carried out as soon as possible."

A copy of Dr. Begg's letter had been forwarded to Dr. H. L. Symon, director of the Central Vancouver Island health unit.

School Work Given Green Light by B.C.

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Education Minister Doug Young has given permission for the preparation of a Port Alberni school project, said MLA Dr. Howard Marshall on Tuesday.

The referendum will include a new junior secondary school, alterations to A. W. Neil junior secondary school and purchase of five portable classrooms.

School board officials expressed pleasure that preparations could proceed but said that no direct word from the education department had been received by the board.

However, approval of plans for the long-awaited community services centre to be built on the high school grounds, has been received together with authority to call tenders.

The centre will provide a vocational training unit for girls similar to that which is now provided for boys at high school level.

It will also release valuable classroom space within the main body of the high school. Existing crowded conditions have required the use of classrooms in the original cafeteria area, and other portions of the school, which were never intended for teaching use, said officials.

The cost of the project is estimated at about $37,500. The funds were allocated by a referendum which was passed by taxpayers months ago.

Quaife Backs Shop Centre

DUNCAN — Support for the Cowichan band's proposed shopping centre was given Tuesday by Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan.

The centre will be situated on the Somenos Indian reserve, near the armories which are being pulled down.

Cost of the demolition work is being shared by the city and the band.

The centre, which will be within the city limits, was the first project discussed by a fact-finding committee which has been formed to seek solutions to various problems in the area, said Mayor Quaife.

The first meeting was held in February.

Members include Mayor Quaife, Ald. Dick Bernice, city clerk Gordon Berry, band manager Ross Modeste, chief Dennis Alphonse, and John Nichols, Indian representative from Vancouver.

Mayor Quaife said that the Cowichan development plan and the Duncan general plan each provides for extensive overhaul of the downtown area.

He said co-operation will guarantee success of both plans.

Mayor Quaife said he is proud of the way aldermen and the band council have worked together and supported each other.

"They have been sincere and shown great trust in each other from the beginning of the fact-finding committee meetings."

He added that the city is willing to provide services to the proposed development.

PROBE STARTS

NORTH COWICHAN — Maple Bay residents complained about impure water to North Cowichan aldermen Monday night during a meeting attended by about 75 ratepayers.

Representing council were Ald. John Cannon, Ald. Dennis Hogan, Ald. Tom Burge, and Ald. George Whittaker.

They were told that the water from the new water system contains iron, which residents said comes either from the pipes or the source.

Kurt Horn, president of the Maple Bay Ratepayers' Association, said laboratory tests verified a high iron content.

The aldermen told the ratepayers that a study on the water is underway. The residents passed a motion asking council for a progress report to the association's executive by Oct. 30.

Some also complained about a lack of water during the summer after they had been told there would be an adequate water supply.

Mayor Donald Morton, who was not at the meeting, said Tuesday afternoon, "I am quite aware of the serious problem in part of the Maple Bay water system.

'Iron Spoils Water'

"It certainly could be contributed to the type of pipes installed in that area and it may be necessary to replace them."

"The engineer is seeking expert advice as to whether it will be practical to treat the pipes at much less cost than the $60,000 it would cost to replace them."

"Until all other solutions have been explored, I don't think council would approve of replacement. However, we will do everything we can."

The ratepayers were also given a report on the proposed $550,000 recreation development at Pioneer Park by Ald. Hogan and Norman Bevan, North Cowichan recreation commission chairman.

Mr. Bevan called for an unselfish attitude towards the proposed recreation complex — Target 69.

A money bylaw has been scheduled for Oct. 26.

Residents will ask council to improve the boat launching ramp at Maple Bay, to blacktop the area and expand parking facilities.

Nanaimo Baseball

Park Plan Discussed

NANAIMO — A request from Nanaimo and District Baseball Association for assistance in providing a new baseball park in Nanaimo was discussed by Nanaimo civic properties and recreation commission on Tuesday.

Members were told that commission chairman Bill McGreggor, Ald. Bill Hunter and exhibition parks chairman Andy Falconer met association representatives Monday night.

It was pointed out that Nanaimo city council and the commission have no money available to finance a new park.

PARK NEEDED

The baseball association committee said there was a need for one and it wanted exclusive jurisdiction if it finances the project by itself.

However the committee pointed out it does not want that to happen. It would like to develop the park in co-operation with city council and, or with the commission.

If either organization can co-operate to construct the park the association would develop it into a first class senior ball park, it was stated.

LAND RELEASED

City council has already released 6½ acres of land in Exhibition Park to the commission for a new ball park. The baseball association said it would like priority use of the park if co-operation is granted and would accommodate 600 players.

It said the decision as to whether the park becomes theirs exclusively or a community park must be cleared up quickly.

Mr. Falconer said the association has plenty of donors who would finance the project directly on their own, at a final cost of about $70,000 which would include a big calibre senior park, bleachers, dressing rooms, toilets, restrooms, concessions, parking facilities and anything else needed.

SIMILAR PROJECTS

Mr. McGreggor said: "The city is short of sites and we should encourage similar projects as outlined by the baseball association in co-operation with the city."

The association said original plans suggested by city council was impossible for park development. Both the commission and association said they hoped council would change its mind.

The commission has written the water rights branch with an application for a licence to permit storage of water and storage at Brannan Lake to permit a minimal flow of water along the Millstone River, through Bowen Park, during the year.

At present the Millstone water level almost runs dry in the summer.

Stone Down

Mayor Frank McLean laid cornerstone of pensioners' housing building at Priddleaux Street, Nanaimo. The housing building is being built by Mount Benson Royal Canadian Legion. Also present for weekend ceremony were Stan McLaren, vice-chairman of pensioners' housing committee, and Agnes Flett.

School Expansion

Brannan Lake Will Grow

NANAIMO — A $173,000 expansion program for Brannan Lake school for boys, near Nanaimo, has been announced by the provincial government.

An official from the public works department said on Tuesday that the expansion will include a 6,000 square-foot addition to house 25 inmates. It will comprise dormitories, a dining room, hobby rooms, classroom and social welfare offices.

Another slightly smaller expansion, costing about $115,000, will be built later, the official said.

Construction of the first project is expected to start next week. The second addition could start next spring.

John Noble, director of Brannan Lake said the addition is not planned to add more inmates to the institution, but rather to provide a more diversified program for youth living at the school at present.

"The new unit is designed to be different from the buildings we have now," Mr. Noble explained, "and to let us continue and improve on the program we've been working on for some time."

He said the addition would provide a number of things:

- Further diversify the existing program of rehabilitation.
- Experiment with new techniques.
- Evolve solutions to problems rather than come up with snap answers.

"This will allow different approaches and different ways of handling new problems, and therefore we hope to better cope with the number of boys we're getting."

Mr. Noble said some single rooms would be included in the expansion.

"We're trying to adjust ourselves gradually to the fact that there is no such thing as a stereo-type juvenile delinquent. A juvenile delinquent is strictly a legal term. We're trying to deal with individual boys."

Nurse Saved Driver

NANAIMO — A Nanaimo nurse has been commended by RCMP for having possibly saved the life of a man injured in a motor vehicle accident Monday night.

She is Mrs. Karen Dink, who ran from her home to aid Glen Angus McKay, whose car collided with a power pole on Burr Road near her home.

He lay on the road, having been thrown from his imported sports car. She checked his pulse and, finding none, immediately began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and chest heart massage.

Nanaimo Regional General Hospital said Mrs. McKay's husband is "good, considering his injuries."

Family Flees Smoke

DUNCAN — Stan Turner and his family of four fled their smoke-filled home early Tuesday.

However, by the time Duncan fire department arrived at the home, 800 Cedar Street, the fire was already under control.

"It was a very minor fire, mostly smoke damage," said Mr. Turner, an employee of B.C. Forest Products, Crofton. He commended the firemen on their quick response.

Servant Went Free

Ministers Mum In Spy Case

OTTAWA (UPI) — The government adamantly refused Tuesday to disclose details of a spy case involving a former civil servant who reportedly tried to peddle military secrets but was let off "in the public interest."

Turner

The case, now "closed" according to Justice Minister John Turner, involved a handsome, well-educated but unknown civil servant who, informed government sources said, tried to sell information to an unnamed foreign power.

Prime Minister Trudeau was justice minister in the government of Lester Pearson when the case arose.

Informants in Ottawa confirmed a report in the Toronto Star that the civil servant was arrested in 1968 by Royal Canadian Mounted Police posing as agents of the foreign power.

Turner, under heavy questioning in the House of Commons, said that a man suspected of spying was investigated by the RCMP but that no charges were laid against him.

"In the absence of charges being preferred it would not be proper nor would it be in the public interest to make the results of such investigations a matter of public record," Turner told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

Replying to questions by Stanfield and other Conservative MPs, Turner said the case was referred to law officers of the crown.

Belgrade Turning To West

Spiljak declared in a parliamentary speech that "in the present worsened international situation, Yugoslavia is ready . . . to improve co-operation with all countries, regardless whether they are socialist or otherwise."

The speech, which catalogued Yugoslav relations in Europe, included a renewed condemnation of the Soviet intervention. Spiljak said Moscow's action meant a "speeding up the armaments race and increasing tension and instability in international and European relations."

Military police fire at students in Mexico City

Snipers' Bullets Fly

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Student snipers battled police and army troops late Tuesday in Mexico City's worst fighting since the revolutionary days of the 1920s. A hospital official said at least 15 persons were killed in 24 hours of gun battles.

Diaz Ordaz

"It's still dangerous as hell out there," said an ambulance driver who delivered a wounded student to the hospital. Nearby armed students on the roof of the National Polytechnical Institute could be heard firing on police and soldiers.

But unless the fighting grows completely out of control, the Olympic Games will open on schedule Oct. 12, authorities said.

TOLL HIGHER

More than 400 assault cars ringed the Santo Tomas Vocational School, part of the larger, institute campus that was occupied by the army after an all-night battle.

The hospital official said the figure of 15 known, dead is less than the actual death toll because students were seen hauling away some bodies as troops advanced on the vocational school before dawn.

The same official said about 35 persons had been wounded, some of them seriously. They included bystanders and passengers on a bus gunned down by night riders early Tuesday. One man on the bus was shot in the back five times, he said.

It was the most serious crisis President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz has faced in his four years of office.

The sniping was so intense that troops occupying the vocational school pulled back to positions around the walls. Nearby streets were littered with the remains of burned out buses, trucks and cars.

"You are here at your own risk," warned a policeman. "The area has not been secured."

FIED AT POLICE

Police said carloads of students cruised the area in the early-morning hours picking off policemen and hurling gasoline fire-bombs at buses commandeered by riot police. One policeman was seriously injured when a gasoline bomb exploded in his lap.

Besides demanding the dismissal of several Mexico City police officials, the students have made a host of other complaints. One of them is that the conservative Institutional Revolutionary Party has controlled Mexican political life too long.

The party has won every presidential and gubernatorial election since its formation in 1928. They are also demanding that the hated "grenaderos" riot police be disbanded, and that an anti-subversion clause be removed from the federal penal code.

Two Women Granted Bail

PENTICTON (CP) — Two women charged with theft in the disappearance of nearly $500,000 from a Penticton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada were remanded to Oct. 1 on $10,000 bail Tuesday.

Prosecutor Brian Weddell said the amount missing was $492,000 when the women appeared before Magistrate Ross D. Collier.

Ann Kathleen Spiller, 38, a five-year bank employee, was charged with falsifying bank records and with theft over $50.

Fannie Shubin, 41, a bookkeeper with Oliver Industries Ltd., was charged with theft over $50.

The two women live together at a home in nearby Naramata.

RCMP said they believe the cash shortage occurred over a two-year period. It was discovered by a bank auditor.

'Extras' Profits Soaring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senator Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.), Tuesday made public what he said was the biggest secret in American industry — the actual cost of building a U.S. car. He used his figures to call for a rollback on all car prices.

Nelson showed reporters what he said was Ford's unit cost analysis, done by a computer, on all its 1968 model cars and the company's list price recommendations.

The figures generally showed that the car maker didn't make an excess profit on what he charged the dealer for the basic car, but there was plenty of profit in what the dealer asked the customer and what the manufacturer charged the dealer for so-called extras.

UP TO 283 PER CENT

A four-door Galaxie 500, for example, cost the dealer 16.8 per cent more than it cost the builder to make. But optional equipment — usually amounting to a third of the selling price — was marked up between 57.8 per cent and 293 per cent over cost, Nelson's figures showed.

Nelson said the Ford documents were submitted on his Senate subcommittee on small business, monopoly by safety critic Ralph Nader. After weeks of analysis by the subcommittee staff, Nelson said "There was no doubt about the authenticity of the documents. This is the real stuff."

REFUSED TO SAY

Despite requests by the justice department, federal safety officials, the United Auto Workers union and other organizations, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler have refused to disclose the cost of building a car. Nelson said GM and Chrysler probably followed similar patterns in construction costs and pricing.

Nelson said that the data showed that the Big Three should be forced to rollback 1968 model car prices to the 1963 levels or lower. At the same time, he said the documents show a lack of price competition among automakers and good reason for soaring industry profits.

Car 81 Where Are You?

Ebbing Tide Answers Query

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Car 81 where are you? Police sat around drinking coffee and munching doughnuts in headquarters early Tuesday when suddenly a voice crackled over the radio at the sergeant's desk: "Hello, City Hall. Hello, City Hall."

Police dashed into the parking lot behind headquarters and discovered patrol Car 81 was gone.

For the next 10 hours headquarters radioed all units to be on the lookout for Car 81. Then at evening tide the waters of Absecon Inlet receded. Car 81 was buried in the muck and mire near Garwood Mills.

"Who are you?" the desk sergeant demanded. The radio was silent for a minute and then a male voice said: "I've got your police car."

"Where are you?" the sergeant said. "I'm around Garwood Mills and I'm going to dump your car in the water."

Then there was silence.
